MILLIONAIRE ROBBER GANG IS CAPTURED

Robbed the Mails of More Than $2,000,000 Last Fall

GENTLEMEN CROOKS

Leader Swaggers Into the Court Wearing Monocle and Carrying Cane

NEW YORK, July 5.—Recovery of $1,500,000 loot of the most sensational postal robbery of years was near today as Gordon McCarthy, "human bloodhound," brought the gang of Edward Bryce, alleged gentleman crook, into court.

Bryce swaggered before United States Commissioner Hitchcock with a cane swinging on his arm and a monocle in his eye.

"The fount," as he was known to his band, was awaiting arraignment on charges of robbing the mails of bonds valued at $2,000,000.

Charles P. Heines and Charles Lambert, who are charged with having participated in the daring mail truck robbery last October, were with Bryce. A woman, known as Bryce's wife, was in the gang taken by McCarthy.

Authorities have unearthed $500,000 worth of bonds. Four hundred thousand dollars worth of securities were found buried under a tree at Silver Lake, Long Island. The remainder was found in the bottom of a trunk when police raided Bryce's luxurious Gramarcy apartment.

Last October seven masked men robbed a mail truck of $2,000,000. McCarthy, agent for the American Railway Express company, started at the bottom of society—New York's underworld—in search for the gang. He posed as "Dip," impersonated a yegg, and proved he could "soup" a safe and blow it clean. He wormed all the secrets from crookdom.

McCarthy searched his way up from the bottom of society—and found his quarry at the peak. He learned the trio was to meet at an uptown hotel one night.

Lambert was arrested as he was eating a well chosen meal and conversing with the waiter in Parisian French. Police closed in on Bryce and Heines, who were leaning against their Rolls-Royce at the corner.

McCarty led the prisoners and his operatives to the Gramarcy apartment of Bryce. McCarthy was politely introduced to a woman called "Mrs. Bryce." As she poured the tea on command of Bryce, the apartment was wrecked by detectives in search of loot. Several pistols, equipped with Maxim silencers, were unearthed, and hundreds of rounds of ammunition found. Bonds valued at $100,000 were found in the bottom of one of Bryce's many trunks. At Heines' apartment coupons said to have been detached from some of the stolen bonds were found.

KILLED WOMAN, SOLD HER FLESH

BERLIN, July 5.—Grossmann, the butcher on trial for the brutal murder of women he had seduced and whose flesh he later sold in his shop, committed suicide today by hanging himself in his cell.

A sensation was caused at the trial yesterday when two women victims of Grossmann, who escaped after he had assaulted them, climbed to railings around the prisoners' box and attacked him with hat pins. Guards rescued Grossmann and he was locked in a cell where he was found dead today.

The butcher was believed to have been insane. His crimes during the war outdid those of 'Bluebeard' Landru in horror. Women mysteriously disappeared and, after a six months' search, the police fastened upon Grossmann as the murderer.

Following his arrest, disclosures of revolting crimes came to light. It was proved that Grossmann, who was a huge, hairy, almost ape-like individual, enticed women customers to the rear of his shop, assaulted and then strangled them.

Later, in the dead of night, the butcher would chop up the bodies of his victims and prepare portions to be sold as veal in his store the next day. Sometimes, the police declared, the flesh of women Grossmann murdered was sold to their own relatives.

The butcher had a huge snag tooth which extended like a fang from a hideous mouth.

So horrible were the details of his crimes that the court was closed to spectators.

CHARLES MARTIN MAILS FIRST LETTER

To Charles F. Martin, 125½ North Brand boulevard, goes the credit of mailing the first letter in the new home of the Glendale postoffice. The communication was addressed by Mr. Martin to George F. Honnold of Winfield, Kan., of which city Mr. Martin is a former resident.

Specialists Are Much Sought After Says James W. Foley

There are not many specialists in this world of affairs, says James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" this evening. "There are many smatterings of knowledge, capacity and ability," he states. "But the man or woman who has special training is sought after and well paid," he declares.

You will find the comment on the day's news particularly interesting, as it deals with "fighting" parsons, who are likely to be the type preaching tolerance. Henry James states that "It is a little hard to discuss them with frankness, lest the critic himself be led into the sin of intolerance." There is comment on bobbed hair, too. This subject is much in the foreground these days.

The four-power treaty pact is the subject for a strong editorial. There are others, too, equally interesting and instructive.

HENLEY CLASSIC OPENS TODAY ON THAMES

American to Contest for Diamond Sculls and Championship

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, Eng. July 5.—Henley Regatta, England's great sporting and society river picnic, opened today amid scenes of great brilliance. Apart from the society aspect, Henley is the Mecca of British rowing men, and this year's contests were of additional importance owing to the strong international entry.

In addition to all the leading British oarsmen, there were entries from United States, Canada, Australia, France, Belgium, Holland, Norway and Switzerland, and it was recognized that there was considerable danger of some of the principal prizes going abroad.

In the Grand Challenge Cup, which Englishmen regard as the world's championship for eight-oared boats, Norway, Switzerland, Belgium and France threw down the gauntlet.

The Swiss Grasshoppers club are also entered for the Steward's Cup—an eight-oared event, while the Silver Goblets (four oars, without coxswain), the Koninkluke Roeien-Zeelvereeniging de Maas, of Rotterdam, Holland, are competing.

There is a high class entry for the Diamond Sculls, generally conceded to be the single-scull amateur championship of the world. W. M. Hoover of the Duluth Boat club represents the United States, and according to the reputation which has preceded him, he should prove a dangerous opponent. Other foreign entries are: M. W. Schmid of the See club, Zurich, Switzerland; A. A. Baynes of the Commercial Rowing club, Brisbane, Australia, and H. A. Belvea of the St John's Rowing club, Canada.

The regatta lasts four days.

MULES RIOT ON CITY LAWNS

Residents living in the Brand boulevard and Chestnut street section had the times of their young lives last night. Several stray mules, all bent on doing the maximum of damage, meandered over to that territory and proceeded to dig up all the lawns in sight. The property owners protested and a hot time between the residents and mules resulted. The riot call was sent to the police department, several members of which responded, and lulled the storm.

GLENDALE RADIO IS ACCLAIMED

Programs and Modulation Brings Applause by Telephone

ARTISTS ENCORED

Stations Surrounding City Receive Program With Wonderful Clearness

Youngest of the broadcasting stations in this section, the programs of the Press-Newton station, Glendale, both artistically and in delivery, have been acclaimed as the best on the air by more than a hundred radio fans, who telephoned the Glendale Daily Press, after the close of the Monday night concert.

The telephone rang unceasingly for hours, volunteering praise of the renditions of real music, given by Henry H. aCntor, operatic tenor, whose clear enunciation and phrasing was commented upon admiringly; by Miss Mildred Pray of Eagle Rock, whose great, big concert tones, given in the rendition of classical concert numbers, were encored by telephone, and of Edward Moniot of Glendale, whose three selections on the banjo were sent clear ni the masterly touch of the player. Mr. Moniot was somewhat skeptical of the carrying qualities of banjo music via radio. The reports by telephone were convincing that the Glendale Press-Newton station had delivered them without the loss of tone quality.

Every phone praised the modulation and quality of the broadcasting, as a distinct advance over the work of other stations in this district.

POSTAL EMPLOYE BOOSTS GLENDALE IN RECORD

Tells Associates Throughout U. S. What iKnd of a City This Is

The following article appeared recently in the Postal Record for the month of July, having been sent to that publication by C. S. Nicholson:

The eyes of the nation are on Glendale, the jewel city of the nation, the fastest growing burg on the face of the globe. They say that blood will tell and figures won't lie. According to a recent census, Glendale made a growth of 393 per cent in ten years. At that time it had a population around 13,000; now the most conservative estimate is 30,000 to 35,000 residents.

As stated in our recent article in the Postal Record, Glendale became an independent postoffice of the first class on January 1. The employes consider themselves fortunate in the department selection of Captain Ripley D. Jackson as postmaster—a soldier, a gentleman and a scholar; in fact, one of the country's noblemen. His practcial policy of a square deal to everyone has enlisted the hearty cooperation of all his employes and assures the most congenial conditions to be found in any postoffice.

The employes are organized 100 per cent in every way. Besides the local of the N. A. P. postal clerks, a branch of the N. A. L. C., and a local welfare council were organized. All these organizations have had the cooperation and hearty approval of Postmaster Jackson.

At the first meeting of our local welfare council the chief topic of discussion was the new postoffice building, and Postmaster Jackson was requested to present the plans for suggestions along welfare lines. We particularly objected to the proposed concrete or cement floor, on the grounds that it is unsanitary and injurious. The postmaster agreed with us and personally took up the fight for the wooden floor.

The gratitude of the local employes is extended to the postmaster and assistant postmaster, who worked almost day and night to secure better conditions in the new building for the welfare of the employes. Through their efforts the swing rooms were placed on the mezzanine floor, with plenty of light, air and space. Also, for additional toilets, skylights and ventilators, which are all conducive to good health.

We are grateful to Congressman Lineberger, E. J. Cantwell, Brother Flaherty and Welfare Director Dennison for their assistance in blocking cement floors for postoffice buildings.

MYSTERY FIRE

DENVER, Colo., July 5.—Investigation was being made today into a mysterious fire that caused $60,000 damage to the Moffat railroad shops here yesterday.

Your Boy--Their Girl

Modern educational thought, studying your boy and your neighbor's girl at close range, is following along the line laid down in the editorial, "Sowing the Whirlwind," in the Glendale Daily Press, which was read recently from the pulpits of Glendale churches.

"You can't save your boy unless you save your neighbor's girl," declared Dr. Caroline Hedges of Chicago, addressing the teachers, superintendents and ministers attending the summer session at the state college of Washington. Her discussion is worth reprinting in full. It is here, condensed:

"Get rid of jazz; you will never get decent dancing till you do. It is a civic problem. The community must set standards. You can't save your boy unless you save your neighbor's girl.

"In our social problems we sometimes fail because we do not consider the importance of health. The unsocialized adolescent is the most expensive, the most trying problem of the day. We pour millions of dollars into our preventive and corrective machinery—juvenile courts, probation and truancy officers, detention homes and reformatories—and what do we get in return? Mighty little, compared with the need."

She spoke of the rapid and irregular growth of the adolescent period, from 12 to 25 years, when the muscular system often far outgrows the circulatory and nervous system. This, she said, explains why they have so little control of their muscles at this time, are so awkward, and sometimes faint if held too long to continuous effort, as the high school boys in military drill. The fainting showed no heart disease, she said, but merely indicated what doctors know as "the narrow heart of adolescence," a heart not yet grown up to the increased demands.

"Don't tell the boy how awkward he is when he stumbles over his own feet, and don't know what to do with his hands," said the doctor. "He knows it; don't rub it in. You may make him so self-conscious that he will never get over it, never become the whole man he should.

"The strain is enormous at this time of rapid growth. He is not lazy, but merely putting all his physical and nervous energy into the unusual physical development. He needs sleep and rest and he rarely gets it under our present high school and social system. We are burning up our high school boys and girls prematurely when we push them so hard at this critical time."

SHOPMEN STRIKE IS UNAFFECTED

Refusal of Maintenance of Way Strike Alleged to Strengthen Position

CHICAGO, July 5.—Railroad shopmen, now on strike, are able to stand on their own feet, Bert M. Jewell, union chief, declared today.

Refusal of the maintenance of way workers to strike has strengthened the position of the shopmen, who are now out, rather than weaken it, Jewell said.

"We would rather settle this affair with the railroads ourselves than draw other unions into the controversy,' he said. "We never urged the other union chiefs to call a strike.

"If the maintenance of way men found the best way out of a difficult situation through their compromise with the United States railroad labor board, we have no complaint.

"The shopmen's strike will never be settled on terms which the maintenance of way men accepted."

Jewell was elated over a big batch of telegrams on his desk, telling of oilers, signalmen and maintenance of way men and firemen going out on unauthorized strike in sympathy with the shopmen.

Jewell had one telegram, he said, from Roanoke, Va., which said that train service on one line there was completely tied up through lack of engines in repair.

"The men are sticking," Jewell said, "and I am convinced they are more determined to see this strike through to a finish as a result of recent announcements by the labor board.

"I wonder what the capitalists would say if the labor board announced dissolution of a railroad because it refused to obey its decisions?

"That is what they have tried to do to the shopmen's union."

Railroads are not having much success with their strikebreaking campaign, Jewell stated.

"They are finding it difficult to hire men to 'scab' and it is costing them many times more in wages and keep and inefficient work, to hire strikebreakers, than it would have cost had they paid wages which we asked."

Jewell was plainly satisfied with the progress of the strike.

He looks for a long drawn-out strike, holding to his prediction that it would be settled on the union's terms just before the November election.

Hundreds of strikebreakers are undoubtedly being poured into the large shop centers to take places of the men who have walked out.

Jewell believes the strike will be peaceable, except at a few points, where he has urged authorities to exercise close vigilance and promised to cooperate in every possible way with police officials in keeping the men out of trouble.

Jewell declared that a few reports of shopmen who went on strike Saturday, were returning to work, were "bunk" and "railroad propaganda."

"We are gaining new men every day," he said.

With the burning of 2700 envelopes containing strike orders to maintenance of way workers, danger that 800,000 additional railroad workers would join the shopmen's walkout, was passed.

Peace between the maintenance men and the railroad came after an all-day session between union leaders and members of the United States railroad labor board. The board promised to reconsider the $50,000,000 wage cut effective July 1. If the board finds that the cost of living has gone up instead of down since the last government figures were issued and a new wage scale is worked out, it will be retroactive to July 1.

The action of the maintenance men is expected to definitely prevent other allied unions joining the shop workers.

The clerks have negotiated wage agreements with more than a score of roads and it is considered unlikely that they will strike. Although President Timothy Healy of the stationery firemen and oilers told the 8 000 members of his organization they had "a perfect right to strike." few locals responded by a walkout.

The 13,000 signalmen, led by D. W. Helt, have followed the lead of the maintenance men up to this time and it is believed they will continue to abide by the decisions of the more powerful union.

MERCHANTS' TEAM VISITS SUNLAND

Cleans Up on Tujunga Valley Baseball Team

The Glendale Merchants visited Sunland yesterday and took the long end of a game from Bill Kimpell's Tujunga valley ball club. The game was fast and hotly contested from the start. Both Heidler and Gedwell were in rare form, and the game developed into a pitchers' battle, Heidler striking out 13 men, and allowing but 6 hits. The break came in the 5th inning when Aggeson hit, Heidler got on with the help of a bad throw, Cobb hit and forced Aggeson at third. Harris drew a pass and filled the bases. Baby King then came through with a double, scoring Heidler, Cobb and Harris. Jenssen of the Valley club smacked out a homerun in the 6th, but that's all they could do after the sixth.

She also accompanies Mr. Wilbur Funk, the saxophone instructor, who played on the Press-Newton program recently.

William Body, who is a master of the saxophone, will add to the attractiveness of the program by favoring the many fans with two selections.

One outstanding feature of the program will be the Shrine Club orchestra of six pieces, reputed to be among the best. The remainder of the program will be furnished by them, thereby putting the finishing touch to what is evidently one of the best programs ever featured through the air of Southern California.

Last Monday night the regular conclave of the commandery was held in Masonic hall. The regular routine business was transacted, and several applicants were put through the commandery degrees.

TWO ACCIDENTS ON THE FOURTH

Two accidents marred the quiet Fourth in Glendale. The noise the youngsters did not make with firecrackers and the like, the "old ones" made in the bending of tin and the sounding of horns.

Charles A. Taylor of Tujunga was driving a machine that collided with a car operated by A. E. Randall of 701 North Isabel street, the accident taking place at 5:30 at the corner of Los Feliz and San Fernando roads. The damage was slight, and no one was sent to the hospital.

Cars driven by J. H. Thompson, 114 West Doran street, and a fellow whose name could not be learned, came together at the corner of Broadway and Glendale avenue yesterday afternoon. Only slight damage was done.

FORMAL OPENING OF POSTOFFICE

The formal opening of the new location of the Glendale postoffice occurred Monday morning. Many complimentary remarks were offered by the merchants of Glendale to the postal department, and floral compliments were presented by the Ralphs Grocery company and the Purcell Cabinet company.

EAST SIDE HOTEL PLAN PROGRESSING

Joint Committee of Advancement Assn. and C. of C. Formed

MEET ON THURSDAY

Representative of Los Angeles Hotel Proprietor States Offer

Although nothing definite was done at Monday evening's meeting of the combined hotel committees from the Glendale chamber of commerce and the East Glendale Advancement association, Mr. Whitney of Los Angeles, representing Mr. Tremaine, repeated his principal's proposition to the new members of the committee.

On account of the slight attendance the meeting was adjourned until Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the chamber of commerce headquarters. C. W. Ingledue has been elected chairman and Miss Baldwin has been selected as secretary of the combined committee.

"Everything is coming along fine in connection with the hotel proposition," said Mrs. Mable L. Tight, chairman of the hotel committee of the East Glendale Advancement association, this morning. "The entire proposition never looked brighter. On Thursday night we expect to adopt a definite plan of action with regard to raising the additional amount necessary for the hotel, and if plans do not miscarry, a strenuous campaign will be started bright and early Friday morning. This hotel is actually secured, and the putting over of the proposition is only a matter of days."

SHRINE CLUB TO MEET FRIDAY EVENING

Splendid Program, Buffet Luncheon and Smoker Arranged

E. F. Heisser, president, and Charles Hahn, secretary of the Shrine club of Glendale, announce a July business and social meeting, Friday evening, July 7, at 8 o'clock. IRISH REBELS STILL FIGHT

DUBLIN, July 5.—A handful of rebels held out today against troops of the Free State.

Sporadic, feeble fire still came from the little group of shell torn buildings on Sackville street, where the rebellion of Rory O'Connor, now in jail, was dying under the reported leadership of Eamonn De Valera.

Free State artillery tossed 18-pound shells into the smoking ruins whence the rebel fire came, but the effort to dislodge the remaining extremists was half hearted.

Collins' men were sick of bloodshed and the killing of fellow Irishmen. Hope was that the rebels would find a way to surrender as did their leader and end the useless civil war.

Armored cars and fresh troops with the bayonet were ready to stamp out the last spark of rebellion in the Irish Free State.

KINGSTOWN, Ireland, July 5.—Armed gangs of bandits and insurgents, including Irish mountain girls carrying revolvers and blackjacks were rounded up and captured in the hills of County Wicklow today by Free State troops.

The bands had been invading villages, descending from the mountains in swift night raids. Millinery shops were especially singled out for looting by the women bandits.

Government troops, called upon by villagers for aid, rushed in lorries to the robbers' stronghold in the hills and brought back thirty prisoners.

CREDIT MEN TO CONSIDER LAW

Asked to Meeting Tomorrow on the Parking Ordinance

The Merchants' Credit association held its regular meeting at a lunch at the chamber of commerce last Monday noon. In the absence of Judge Emery, the meeting was presided over by W. P. Potter.

A letter was read from the city authorities requesting the presence of members of the association at a public hearing which is to be held at the city hall, at the request of the Glendale realty board, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, to consider the existing parking ordinance.

The main item under discussion was that of the "speed trap," which it was stated was in existence on East Broadway, and which it was claimed was working a detriment to Glendale because of the arrests which had been made of persons from other cities when passing through here in their autos at a reasonable rate of speed, unaware of the existence of said trap. No action was taken in this matter, City Manager Reeves claiming that the court was as lenient as could be under the existing state law governing the speed of autos passing through cities.

Twenty-seven members were present. New members reported were Crystal Ice company and Autoelectric Service company.

A visitor present was Clifford C. Morrow of Indianapolis, Ind., representing the flying squadron, who is here for a short time arranging for a three-day meeting of that organization, to be held some time next month.

GRAND FALLS, Nova Scotia.—Four million salmon fry were hatched this spring at the hatchery here, and are being distributed.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH BEGINS REVIVAL MEETINGS

Evangelist Le Grande Opens With Powerful Sermon From Bible

The two weeks' revival meetings that began Monday night in the beautiful new Central Christian church building, have thus far been well attended. Evangelist Le Grande is preaching some powerful sermons and they are straight from the Bible. He does not give out soothing words and condone sin, but preaches Christ and Him crucified. He pictures Jehovah not as a stern, merciless avenger of sin, but a pitying, tender, loving Father, who is patient with His erring children to the very last day of life, yet stern and just in His judgement when the unrepentent sinner appears before Him that great final day. His subject tonight is, "Is Jesus Divine?" This sermon should have a large hearing.

Lovers of music who fail to attend these meetings are missing a rare treat. Charlie Howe and his sweet-faced wife are real artists in this line and the song service they give for the first 15 or 20 minutes each evening, beninning promptly at 7:45, will please all.

Tuesday evening they gave a patriotic program in honor of the Fourth, consisting of "The Star-Spangled Banner" played on the violin by Mr. Howe, his wife accompanying him on the piano. Then all sang "America," after which Mr. and Mrs. Howe played "American Patrol" on the wonderfully swet toned merimba. This was followed by Mr. Howe singing "The Story of the Flag," followed by "The Mocking Bird" on his violin, with beautiful variations. He and his wife play eight different instruments, each one just as well as the other.

Tonight's program will include, as special numbers, "I'm Praying For You" on the merimbaphone, and "Nearer My God to Thee" played on all four strings of the violin at one time, rendering all four of the parts.

Come out tonight, hear the beautiful opening program and enjoy a sermon straight from the Bible, is the cordial invitation of Rev. C. A. Cole. He wants you to see the great new building just dedicated.

Nominated to Succeed Knox in U. S. Senate and for Full Term

Major David A. Reed, of Pittsburg, received the Republican nomination at the recent Pennsylvania primaries for the unexpired term of the late Senator Knox and also for the full term beginning next March. He was practically unopposed and this assures his election. Major Reed was one of the first Pittsburgers enrolled for the original military training camp at Pittsburg. He served after the war as American representative on several inter-Allied commissions.

Major Reed married Miss Adele Wilcox, of New York.

ONE LOST SHEEP IS TROUBLE MAKER

So Declares Dr. Funk at First Lutheran Church

Speaking on the subject of "The Lost Sheep," Dr. Funk declared that one lost sheep is the cause of more trouble than ninety-nine sheep gathered safely in the fold. The parable of the lost coin in our lesson illustrates the intense interest of the Saviour in seeking to save that which is lost. In our time a young man procures a ring for the intendent bride; but in those days when a young man became engaged to a young lady he earned ten pieces of silver, each piece bearing the image of the king. These were formed into a chain and placed around the woman's neck. If none of the pieces have been lost when the wedding day arrives all goes well, and the consummation of their hearts' desire is brought to pass; but if she should lose one of the pieces the engagement was broken forever.

Jesus, no doubt, had heard of a young woman who had been so unfortunate as to lose one silver pieces, and inquires, "Will not such a woman light a candle and sweep the house, seeking diligently until she finds it? 'And when she hath found it, she calleth her friends and neighbors together, saying, rejoice with me; for I have found the piece which I had lost.' Likewise I say untol you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner that repenteth."

I never give up any man for lost. I keep on hoping and praying, and working for his salvation. When Jonah was swallowed by the great fish they certainly thought that Jonah was surely lost; but God heard his penitent prayer in the belly of the fish.

Yes, I believe in infant salvation, too. The figure of Christ bearing the lambs in His arms, while He calls to the sheep to follow, means that those who die before the age of choice, or personal accountability, are borne by Him, but those who choose to transgress His commands must repent and follow His as their leader.

In conclusion, permit me to illustrate the value of one soul. I remember the manufacturers and liberal arts building at the World's fair of Chicago. The Tiffany exhibit had such a crowd around it day and night that it was almost impossible to get near it. The exhibit consisted of a revolving cone of purple velvet, and at the apex of the cone a rare and beautiful diamond. It was well worth seeing, for it was of immense value. But, hear me, the most ragged pauper on earth, or the most degraded woman, the most ignorant boy or girl, is worth more than ten thousand gems like that.

JUDGE CRAWFORD RAPS TESTIMONY OF COUPLE

Discredits One's Word, Statement of Other Is Attacked

SPEEDERS' SESSION

Many Are Fined and Two Lose Their Licenses, Temporarily

One defendant was fined $50, and two temporarily lost their operator's licenses when their cases were called by Judge Crawford during the "Speeders' day" session held Monday.

"Speeders' day" was held one day earlier this week than usual due to the fact that the regular date occurred on the Fourth of July.

The fine of $50 was assessed against Harold H. Kennedy, and the pair to lose their operator's licenses were Basil Giles and George Collins.

Kennedy was charged with driving 45 miles an hour in the 20-mile zone on outer San Fernando boulevard. He crossed the intersection at San Fernando and Magnolia avenue at 35 miles an hour and then speeded up to a gait averaging from 45 to 48 miles an hour, Officer Olchvary testified.

Kennedy's explanations of a broken speedometer, "that he wasn't going that fast," and other explanations were discredited by the judge.

"I don't believe a word that you have told me," asserted the judge.

"Not one word?" softly asked the defendant, reddening.

"No—and you must remember that a judge's thoughts of clemency are forgotten when he believes the truth is not being told," declared the judge.

Judge Crawford's ire was aroused during the testimony of George Calvin, who was fined $25 and whose operator's license was withdrawn for 30 days.

On being asked if he was ever arrested before, Calvin answered, "One time—once or twice." An officer in the courtroom volunteered the information that it was really twice.

Calvin stated that he had been arrested twice, but that "he was acquainted with Judge Fisher and did not have to appear when picked up the second time."

"What? You mean to tell this court that your acquaintance with a judge permitted you to get off?" roared Judge Crawford.

The defendant did not respond with a direct answer.

"Why, if it was my own mother I would have her appear in court, and she would be delighted to do so, were she living," asserted the judge at the inference that a "judge fixes things for friends."

Basil Giles, who despite his youth of 16 years, measures six feet and one inch in height, was the other defendant to lose his operator's license. The license was withdrawn for 10 days. Giles appeared to be a mild-mannered youth and was very attentive. He was charged with driving 28 miles in a 15-mile zone.

Others fined were:

Pietro Money, $5; Earl Pimlott, $5; Pasquire Emanuel McNally, $5; Guy Pasquoni, $5; Wesley R. Mason, $5.

The $5 fine assessed Money was suspended during his good behavior.

As usual, a number of defendants were absent, causing the judge to remark, "that a few folks will be sent for."

UNUSUAL BARGAINS IN FURNITURE OFFERED

Robison's $5,000 Stock to Be Sold by DeMoss & Holloman

One of the biggest events ever offered by an individual merchant of the San Fernando valley will open tomorrow when the firm of DeMoss & Holloman places on sale a $5,000 stock of furniture at the original cost price.

The stock is the furniture that was secured from the W. C. Robison Furniture store of East San Fernando boulevard, which recently quit business and turned their stock over to DeMoss & Holloman.

All kinds of good furniture will go on sale at remarkably low prices. None of the furniture is second-hand and none of it is old, as the Robison store had been in business only one year, and most of the stock was purchased recently.

Everything in the line of furniture, from carpet tacks to complete sets of housekeeping goods are included in the sale. Although the sale does not start until 8 o'clock Thursday morning, many persons have been inspecting the stock and have signified their intention of making purchases just as soon as the sale starts.

The sale of this high-grade furniture at extremely low prices will continue until the stock has been exhausted.

The furniture will be placed on sale in the large salesrooms of the DeMoss & Holloman company, the largest place of its kind in the San Fernando valley.

The salesrooms are located at First street and Orange Grove avenue, Burbank.

COMET GAS MAY STIFLE WORLD

Berlin Observer of Sky Voices Foolish Thought

BERLIN, July 5.—There is a possibility that the whole world may be "gassed" to death by the poison vapors of a huge comet.

Prof. Doctor Archenhold, chief astronomer of the Treptow observatory here, points to this possibility after years of research in the field of comet action.

He says, however, that the inhabitants of this globe need have no immediate anxiety about this point. So far, his investigations indicate, such a catastrophe is only a possibility. He pointed out that there are many bodies sailing through the space, redhot and filled with poisonous gases. In event of a collision between the earth and one of these bodies, it would be conceivable, he says, that sufficient poison gas would be given off to cause the downfall of the world's population.

He says that there have been cases of comet colliding with the earth and killing a few people.

While he does not believe there is any immediate prospect of the world ending through such an odd occurrence as he pictures, he nevertheless points out that there is always a chance for such a dangerous collision.

The greatest speed of any solid body known to science is 1,800 kilometers per second. This is attained by certain astral bodies, according to Professor Archenhold.

CHURCHES HERE HOLD PATRIOTIC EXERCISES.

Services Held by First Christian and Methodist Churches

PATRIOTIC NUMBERS

Rev. L. G. Parker and Mrs. Eva Wheeler Deliver Addresses

Patriotic services were held at both the Methodist and First Christian churches Sunday in observance of Independence Day, July 4.

The First Christian orchestra, under the new leadership of Director White, rendered many excellent patriotic numbers, and Rev. L. G. Parker gave a very interesting address on patriotism.

Mrs. Eva Wheeler, noted war worker, addressed the patriotic services at the Methodist church. She related the many incidents in connection with her trip to New Zealand, Australia, and other places during the war. She also delivered an address in behalf of the Wright law. Both addresses were splendid.

In addition to the regular services at the Methodist church Sunday morning, a reception was held for the 20 new members of the church. The quarterly communion services also were held.

BUILDING PERMITS START MONTH OFF FINE

Permits Issued for Two New Residences in Burbank

Building permits in Burbank for the month of July received a good start Monday when three permits were issued, two of them being for new residences.

One of the permits was secured by A. R. Graham, Burbank realtor, for a two-story shellac dwelling at 620 West Sixth street. The house will contain six rooms and the probable cost was given as $6,000. A garage will be erected in connection.

The second permit for a residence was secured by Clarence Line, who plans to erect a six-room frame dwelling and garage at 537 Palm avenue, at an estimated cost of $3,500.

Matty L. Duncan, 274 North Orange Grove avenue, secured a permit to build a 12 by 16 frame garage at a cost of $200.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Witenburg have returned to the home of the latter's parents, Rev. and Mrs. Thomas F. Allen, Burbank, after spending their honeymoon at San Francisco and Portland. They will reside at their new home in Artesia.

FORMER FIANCE RECOVERS RING

Just as Miss Barnardine F. Sturman was about to become the bride of Dr. Joseph Henry Selib, a Dorchester (Mass.) dentist, a former fiance of hers appeared, with a flock of deputy sheriffs, and took away from her a $900 engagement ring he had given her. Then the wedding to the dentist took place.

BURBANK OFFICER TAKES FAMILY ON TRIP

Kyle Says Fishing Good at San Fernando Lake These Days

Police Officer Kyle, his family, and a number of relatives spent the week-end in camping at the San Fernando lake.

Fishing, which is now permitted after it had been banned for some time, is good, according to Officer Kyle.

"We caught about 60 or 70 small perch in a couple of hours," he said.

MISSIONARY LADIES TO HOLD MEETING

The ladies of the Missionary society of the First Christian church will hold their meeting at the church Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Severns will be the leader.

Mr. Dorner Schuler of San Diego was the guest of Dr. V. P. Ervin, Monday. Mr. Schuler is an old friend of Dr. Ervin's and surprised him by making an unexpected visit.

TRIO OF PICTURES AT THE LOCAL THEATER

Final Showing of "Gleam o' Dawn" at Victory Tonight

The final showing of "Gleam o' Dawn," starring John Gilbert, will be made tonight at the Victory theater. Events in the picture move fast from beginning to end.

Jack Hoxie in episode No. 3 of "Thunderbolt Jack," and Larry Semon in "The Saw Mill," complete the bill.

C. E. MEMBERS SURPRISE MRS. SLY

Mrs. Sly and children, Sibbald and Myrl, of Seventh and Angelino avenues, were pleasantly surprised last Saturday evening by 25 members of the Christian Endeavor. Mrs. Sly and family left Monday evening for Flint, Michigan. Both Sibbald and Myrl have been active workers in the Christian Endeavor and will be greatly missed by their many friends. During the evening games and music were greatly enjoyed by all. A delicious course of Sherbet and cake was also enjoyed.

AUTO CAMP SITE FAVORED FOR BURBANK

City Engineer Miller and Secretary Colburn Approve Plan

ADDS NEW CITIZENS

City Has Equipment, But No Site for Camping Grounds

An auto camp ground is one of the best advertisements that a city can have, according to F. Curt Miller, city engineer, when asked if he believed Burbank should have a camp ground here for transients and prospective residents.

"Many new citizens are often added to a city that has a good camp," said Mr. Miller.

Robert W. Colburn, secretary of the Burbank chamber of commerce, is another local person who believes that Burbank should have an auto camp.

The agitation for an auto camp started recently after many inquiries had been received regarding "Burbank's auto camp."

One person, who drove here from the East, said he wanted to camp here until he decided for sure if he wanted to locate here permanently. He was also of the opinion that Burbank's climate would be good for his wife, who has been in failing health for some time.

Inability to secure a city camp site caused him to leave disappointed.

The city formerly maintained a well equipped camp at the head of Palm avenue near the Verdugo hills. However, the camp was disbanded by the city on complaints of nearby residents following the actions of Holy Rollers in taking charge of the camp and using it as a meeting place, it was alleged.

The equipment is yet at the old camp site and could be used in starting another camp, according to Engineer Miller.

He believes that the camp should be located along the foothills, as it gives the camper a grand view of the city and thereby creates a favorable impression.

PARKED MACHINE BLAMED FOR ACCIDENT

Driver of Truck Bumps Into Los Angeles Bakery Wagon

A parked auto, which obscured the view of the driver of another machine as he started to back his car from the pavement, is blamed for a near-serious accident that occurred Monday in front of the Burbank Public market.

The accident nearly demolished a bakery wagon driven by F. C. Price of Los Angeles. Price started to back the wagon from the pavement when the rear of the wagon was struck by a passing truck, operated by Earl Goodspeed, 1050 Magnolia avenue.

Goodspeed reported that he was driving only about 10 miles an hour when the crash occurred. No blame was attached to anyone as the result of the accident.

LONDON HARD HIT WITH RADIO CRAZE

LONDON, July 5.—All conquering radio has got London with both hands.

Ever since the night of the Lewis-Carpentier fight, when the newspapers "broadcasted" the results of each round into the homes of countless amateur radio fans, the public has been held by the possibilities of this craze.

Newspapers are filled with radio news and doings.

Instruments of amateurs are now being tuned up ready for the reception of broadcasting reports which are now allowed as the result of a conference of officials of the government and postoffice departments.

The Manchester Wireless society—an amateur club—has started to construct a high power wireless station at Baguely, Cheshire, for the purpose of transmitting and receiving from America.

BAD LANDS FOR GOOD DOGS

BILOXI, Mis., July 5. For some mysterious reason, dogs cannot live on Ship Island, 13 miles off this port. This fact is borne out by old residents who have frequently attempted to keep dogs, only to lose them after a short stay. According to some medical authorities, the dags probably become affected with chigga, a disease which is said to originate from the island sand.

'SNIPES' TRY TO RUN CITY, SAYS JUDGE

Professional Loafers of Burbank Slammed by Judge Crawford

DEFIANT LAD FINED

Some Folks Here Think They Are the Law, Judge Avers

"California is a part of the United States of America, and the laws must be obeyed; some folks in Burbank think they are the law themselves, but they must get such thoughts out of their heads."

The foregoing assertion was vigorously made by Judge A. A. Crawford during the case of Carlo Cessri, a youth charged with driving a car improperly equipped and without lights.

The testimony developed that young Cessri resisted the officers when they arrested him on the charges. His case was heard Monday.

In his comments during the case Judge Crawford remarked:

"This town, like many other small towns, has its professional loafers, or gutter snipes, as I call them, who try to run things."

Fred Olchvary, the arresting officer in the case, told the judge that when he approached Cessri because the latter's auto was improperly equipped and was without lights, it was for the purpose of getting the troubles remedied.

However, Cessri became indignant, according to the officer, the outcome resulting in charges being preferred against the driver.

The step taken by the officer further incensed the youth and re refused to sign a card ordering his appearance in court, and he was taken to the police office, it was alleged.

During this time he resisted the officer in every way possible, Officer Olchvary testified. It was said that the youth persisted in disobeying orders of the officer despite the urgings of his parents and also Mayor Crawford, who happened to be at the place at the time.

The officer's story was substantially verified by the youth's mother, who said her son is highly nervous as the result of a breakdown suffered about a year and a half ago.

Judge Crawford's verdict in the case was a "$50 fine or 50 days in jail," but on the mother's plea that she tried to rear her son to respect the law, and on the son's promise to obey officers in the future, $35 of the fine was suspended during good behavior.

The suspension of part of the fine was also made on the condition that the youth go to work and pay the fine. His mother paid the $15 fine, assuring the judge she would collect the money from her son's wages.

When his case first opened, young Cessri appeared to be in a defiant mood, but during his mother's plea in his behalf he softened and at several times was on the verge of crying.

The father, unable to speak English, continually smiled and nodded approbation of the proceedings during the entire trial.

RAT ATTACKS BABY SLEEPING IN CRIB

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., July 5.—Florence Butchino, three-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Butchino, who reside in the northern part of the county, was close to death when attacked in her crib by a large rat.

Awakened by her cries, the parents found the baby covered with blood from a hole the size of a quarter which the rodent had gnawed over the left eye. A physician closed the wound with several stitches. Later the wound had to be reopened and infected parts cut away. It is thought the baby will recover, but will be badly scarred.

Physicians assert that it is the first case of the kind on record in northern New York.

Then there is the man who goes through life taking so much of his time fighting other people's battles that he hasn't any strength left to fight his own.

Cantilever Shoe

For Men, Women and Children

Shoes Your Feet Aren't Forced to Fit

There are shoes that require your feet to fit them; and there are shoes fashioned to fit your feet. To secure your correct fit, you don't have to buy a model that seems homely to you but you do need a shoe with a natural inner sole line and a snug heel seat, also a flexible arch, for reason that your own foot has a flexible arch. The Cantilever Shoe is a good looking shoe in which you can obtain a fit better than you have had before. It possesses a flexible arch.

When laced up trimly under your arch, a Cantilever gives just the support there you need. No steel shank-piece concealed between soles restricts the natural flexibility of your foot nor compels your arch to fit the shank of the shoe. The flexible Cantilever arch conforms to the undercurve of the individual foot. It is well to remember that the height of the foot arch varies greatly in different feet or the same size, and only in a shoe with a flexible shank can you be sure of proper fit and support.

With every step your muscles exercise as they desire to exercise; your circulation is agreeably stimulated, instead of being slowed up; you don't become tired so soon; you look just so much better for not feeling tired; and you avoid foot-strain and the many troubles physicians ascribe to that.

Allow us to fit you in Cantilever Shoes. Learn what supreme comfort may be yours. And see how good looking your feet appear in them.

GLENDALE COUPLE SURPRISE FRIENDS

Mrs. Nina Brackney and A. R. Fletcher, Wed at Ventura

Mrs. Nina Brackney of 436 West California avenue and A. R. Fletcher of Glendale surprised their many friends here by sending a telegram from Ventura, telling of their marriage there on Monday morning. The ceremony, which was a simple, home one, was performed by Rev. T. M. Patterson.

Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher spent a short honeymoon at the beautiful summer resort, Brent's Mountain Craigs, and are now at home to their many friends at 436 West California avenue.

Mrs. Fletcher has been in Glendale for about two years and was formerly connected with Pulliam & Kiefer. She is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Archer and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Archer, and a cousin of Mrs. Warren Roberts.

Mr. Fletcher is connected with the Glendale Plumbing company, and has lived here about a year. He spent two years and nine months in France in the field engineer corps of the Canadian army, and both Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher are very well-known in Glendale.

MISS HODGE GIVES A FOURTH PARTY

Miss Rebecca Hodge of 433 Riverdale drive entertained Tuesday evening at a jolly Fourth of July party. The evening, for the most part, was devoted to dancing out under the vine-covered pergola.

During the evening a delicious luncheon was served, Miss Hodge being assisted by her mother, Mrs. Wallace I. Hodge, Mrs. Sarah Ledbetter and Mrs. Robert Yost. The large table, from which the luncheon was served, was attractively decorated in pink and white gladioli.

Truths in Epigram

He who is bent on doing evil can never want occasion. — Syrus (42 B. C.).

If thou shouldst lay up even a little upon a little, and shouldst do this often, soon would even this become great.—Hesiod (720 B. C.).

Grace is given of God, but knowledge is bought in the market.—Clough (1819-1861).

"NEVER AGAIN"

Speaking at San Francisco, after seeing a parade of disabled veterans, Dr. Willis Baer of Pasadena uttered a great truth. "More and more we have come to realize," he said, "that strife must not be allowed to break out between nations, and that the man who sets himself against everything proposed at Washington that would have made this impossible, is not the man to represent California in congress."

The world recognizes that the four-power treaty was the greatest step yet taken in the direction of an abiding peace to enwrap the peoples of the earth. This treaty made certain, primarily, that from the vast expanse of the Pacific, war should be banished. It involved the cutting down of armament so that no nation could retain the ability, even were it to have the desire, to precipitate hostilities. It outlined a method for saving enormous and useless expenditures. It gave opportunity for the governments signatory to the pact, to bend their energies to the promotion of industry. It ended the futile competition that induced each to order ship for ship, to match what another ordered. Great instruments of destruction were being gathered, that each unit of the international family might repel an enemy, or wage conquest.

The senselessness and futility of thus actually planning future wars, became deeply impressed upon minds still acutely conscious of the horrors and costs of recent conflict. The administration at Washington formulated a bold project for removal of the constant and growing menace. It drew up articles of agreement, called others into conference, and the agreement was welcomed, endorsed and upheld. But while this was being accomplished, certain papers notorious for their record of disloyalty, bitterly opposed the benign scheme. They managed to gather some senators into their train. These senators, with all the eloquence they could summon, with every trick of the forum, with ardent pretense of sincerity, or with a sincerity utterly puerile, threw their influence in favor of war and against peace. They, most happily were discredited and defeated, but they have not been forgiven. As they seek to retain positions used by them to flout the hopes and desires of their countrymen, their assurance is monstrous, and their pleas are resented. They had before them a duty clearly defined. They refused to perform the duty. The penalty is upon them.

DEFYING A HANDICAP

A high school student just graduated in Los Angeles won the scolarship honors of his class. His markings were far ahead of those of his nearest competitor. He achieved the distinction of being valedictorian. His career would have been a remarkable achievement to one equipped with all normal senses; and this boy, deaf since babyhood, could hear no sound. To a person of less determination this would have been a handicap fatal to ambition. The ordinary lad, conscious of being at such disadvantage would have given up in advance. He would have decided that the race was not for him, that effort would be useless. He would have given up in despair, chagrined, disappointed, and perhaps embittered. Young Eugene Davis was of different material, and animated by a different spirit. So he won out over all, by a good margin. He simply refused to recognize the handicap. His ears were closed to impressions, but his other senses were alert and keen.

Sometimes pupils seem to be stupid when the fact is that there is lacking from their makeup some unnamed quality essential to acquisition of knowledge. Their instructors do not realize the truth. They try coercion, but without result. But the absence of hearing is not to be concealed. The deaf are aware that their chances are not equal to those of the normally constituted. Perhaps there is an advantage in this. They realize the lack, and if they strive to overcome the effects, they may, as this youth has demonstrated, go farther even than rivals who have no such handicap. The blind become educated, active in trade or profession. The mute become able to make their way in comparative comfort. In every instance of the sort there is a triumph of mind over circumstances. The victor in such a struggle deserves praise and the highest success. He shows determination and intelligence. He becomes an inspiring example to others striving to progress despite natural obstacles, so they need not fear the silence nor the darkness of their environment.

BEAUTY OF SENTIMENT

Often the accusation is made that people are sentimental. So they are. This is one of the best things about them. It is sentiment that gives beauty to life, and the expression of sentiment is in token of love, of admiration, of gratitude. Strewing flowers on the graves of the soldier dead is purely sentimental, yet it serves to keep alive emotions in the absence of which the world would be a graceless and thankless place. Medals have been bestowed in the names of American heroes who sleep in the soil of France. Perhaps they do not know, but whether the knowledge is hidden from their sleeping senses, the act is fine and sweet and comforting. It is not an idle form. It is a tribute deserved, the evidence that the human heart is kindlly, and brave deeds are not forgot. It is well worth while for its influence on the living.

Recently the Red Cross issued a bronze medal and certificate for the late Mrs. Elizabeth Yocum Stevens, who in the early days of the war worked with a fervid patriotism to ease the great suffering that had come upon the earth. To this self-imposed duty she gave her time, her energy, and she crowned the precious gift with her life. No soldier could have done more. The acknowledgement of her service came not until the bloom of more than one season had faded above her. Yet it showed that she had been remembered, that she had won acknowledgement by her devotion, that the public appreciates nobility of purpose and act, and does not forget. So the emblems fill a vital need. They serve as a message to others. They carry balm to hearts still sore.

How to Get Rid of Wildcats

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The word wildcat in this instance is used in reference to unsound investment securities. An appalling number of dollars every year is poured into the rat hole of worthless securities.

DR. FRANK CRANE

Everybody knows this, but the plans supposed to stop it are not intelligent.

It does little good to pass blue sky laws, because, if for no other reason, no legislature can pass a law which wildcats cannot crawl under, jump over or sneak through.

It does no good to preach and lecture and warn, simply because the didatic method has never cured any evil that has its roots in human nature.

There is just one means by which fraudulent securities can be driven out and that is by good securities.

The story has often been told of Dr. Chalmers, the Scottish preacher, who was riding one time upon a stage coach and noticed that at a particularly dangerous curve along the mountain road the driver gave one of the fractious horses a sharp cut with the whip. When asked why he did that, he replied that it gave the animal something to think about, so he didn't get scared. Dr. Chalmers went home and wrote his memorable sermon on "The Expulsive Power of a New Affection." It is nothing but plain common sense, that the best way to get rid of something bad is by something good. If you take away the bad and substitute nothing, behold there will come seven other devils worse than the first.

You can get the air out of a tumbler by a suction pump, but the process is tedious, expensive and imperfect. You can get the air out of the tumbler much more easily by filling it with water.

The main reason why people buy poor securities, worthless stocks and bonds, is that they can get them by investing the ten dollars they have instead of waiting for the thousand dollars they will never have.

The key of universal sound investment is to break the securities up into ten-dollar pieces.

"Some day," says Harry F. Guest," investment bankers are going to awake to the fact that it would be better for the security of their business, better for the individual investors, and better for the nation at large for an investment house to have 100,000 small customers rather than 1000 big customers, and when that day comes it will mark the decline and fall of the promoter of worthless and fraudulent securities."

There is no reason in the world, except the inertia of custom and the stupid fear of changing methods, why first class, sound and reputable bonds cannot be sold for $10 as well as for $10,000.

If the New York Central needs $10,000,000 to buy new locomotives and cars and will go directly to the people, advertise in every small paper in the state and commission every ticket agent to solicit business and get 1,000,000 ten dollar loans, it would be infinitely better for the railroad's prosperity than to go down to Wall street and borrow it in one lump.

Every ten-dollar bondholder would be a friend of the railroad, which is worth considering.

But the main point is that if a man could get a ten-dollar mortgage on the New York Central railroad he would not buy ten dollars' worth of stock in a new oil well which some faker proposes to open in the bottom of Lake Michigan.

When the United States sold government bonds during the war to Tom, Dick and Harry, they set an example which investment houses unfortunately have not had the sense to follow.

Nothing could have a more wholesome effect, by the way, in the old and blind war between labor and capital than to make every laborer a capitalist and that can only be done by putting the fodder of capital in racks down low enough for the calves to reach it.

Mr. Guest has written convincingly upon this subject and his articles ought to be read in the seats of the mighty.

Queries

(Find the error in this article.

Mrs. G. R. Stimtz: "Your column is both interesting and helpful. A head-line in a paper recently read 'To Make a Talk on Normalcy.' It has always seemed to me bad form to use that phrase. Is it correct? Is it not better to say: Will talk on, or about, a given subject; or, even, give a talk. Will you kindly answer in your 'Right Word' colupmn?" Answer: You are right.

Richard D. Harlan: "I am sure you will not take offense if a parson-schoolmaster like myself ventures to call your attention to a shockingly 'wrong' combination of words in your column in today's paper. The paragraph which is the occasion of this note reads as follows: 'Readers hadn't ought to omit . . .' That sentence should have read as follows: 'Readers ought not to omit . . .', or, better still, 'Readers ought to read the whole . . .'." Answer: Please note the words "Find the error in this article" at the head of each instalment. You found the error, and also undoubtedly observed on the following day the correction.

George Kory: "I have been assured by a friend that the use of the words 'stupider' and 'stupidest' is correct. Would you care to furnish me with some information on the subject? Your 'Right Word' column is interesting and educational, and has touched upon many errors of my own. It is a feature that I make a point of reading every day." Answer: From the standpoint of euphony "more stupid" and "most stupid" seem preferable. The use of "er" and "est" in the formation of the comparative and superlative of adjectives of two or three syllables is largely determined by euphony and the practice of good writers.

THE LISTENING POST

In the world of affairs special usefulness commands the surest and best return.

The best paid man or woman is the man or woman who has special training to do some useful and necessary task.

There are thousands and even millions of men who must work with hands and legs and arms and all that.

But they do not command jobs.

They are looking for them often.

* * *

The man who commands a job is better paid than the man who is looking for one.

The plumber who mends the leaking tap commands a job.

Because you have to have the tap repaired.

And not every man has special training.

The plumber does not come to your door and ask if you want him to repair a tap.

* * *

You take the telephone and call the plumber's place of business and ask him to send a man.

Not any man at all.

But a plumber.

A man who knows how to repair a tap.

And one is sent.

And you pay him.

* * *

But the man who comes to your door and asks to cut the lawn.

Or rake the garden.

Or chop wood or do window washing or something like that.

That man has no special training.

He is looking for a job.

And you pay him.

And you fix the rate of pay.

He takes what you are willing to pay.

Because he has no special command of a job.

The plumber fixes his rate of pay.

So does the doctor.

Or the lawyer.

The expert accountant.

Any man whose services you must have fixes his rate of pay.

* * *

So from every practical point of view, special training is profitable.

The man who turns this Listening Post into type, for instance.

He has special training.

And his services are in demand.

And paid for at a higher rate than if he was looking for a job.

* * *

If there is advice needed by young people today it is to learn to work.

Not just to work.

But to learn to work.

To gain special training.

For useful purposes.

* * *

To learn to pull teeth.

Or to audit accounts.

Or to fix leaking pipes.

Or to till soil.

Or to do one of the thousands and one things needed in the world.

And to do it well.

There are many smatterings of knowledge.

Capacity.

Ability.

But there are not too many specially trained persons.

Who know how to do useful and necessary things very well.

JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

When I Have Fears That I May Cease to Be—By John Keats (1795-1821)

When I have fears that I may cease to be
Before my pen has glean'd my teeming brain,
Before high-piled books, in charact'ry,
Hold like full garners the full-ripen'd grain;
When I behold, upon the night's starr'd face,
Huge cloudy symbols of a high romance,
And feel that I may never live to trace
Their shadows, with the magic hand of chance;
And when I feel, fair creature of an hour!
That I shall never look upon thee more,
Never have relish in the faery power
Of unreflecting love—then on the shore
Of the wide world I stand alone, and think,
Till Love and Fame to nothingness do sink.

Gunpowder Is Saltpeter, Charcoal and Sulphur

By STEWART L. BRACKEN

The Fourth of July has been passed. There has been the usual bombardment of firecrackers. It is over, but have you ever thought that pyrotechnic displays are much older than this country and Independence day? The Chinese are thought to have used fire displays in very ancient times, while it is certain that fireworks were used in the Roman circuses. By the sixteenth century court functions in Europe were often celebrated by fireworks displays, and later every great national celebration had its special fireworks.

While the first pyrotechnics probably consisted of bonfires, soon entertainers and the players of those days began to devise flame and fire exhibitions. In modern days the fireworks makers have profited by the knowledge that the chemists and other scientists have produced.

Black gunpowder, the explosive that reigned supreme until the more complex and powerful smokeless variety supplanted it, is the basis of fireworks that make a noise. The firecrackers that are fast being outlawed are nothing but little paper or pasteboard bombshells. About the only way in which the modern chemist has aided in their manufacture is by providing a better and cheaper crimson dye to color their wrappers.

Gunpowder is made up of about 75 parts of saltpeter, 15 parts of charcoal, and 10 parts of sulphur. Saltpeter is potassium nitrate, and in black powder is furnishes the finely-powdered charcoal with an immediate source of oxygen. When the carbon of this charcoal and the oxygen unite they explode, much to the delight of the small boy, and often to his harm. The sulphur acts as a regulator of the rate of burning, as well as contributing to the combustion.

Incidentally, the first real recipe for gunpower is recorded in an anagram by Sir Roger Bacon, whose other manuscripts, which were recently discovered and deciphered, indicate even more advanced scientific knowledge.

But in the colored fires and sparklers of the more quiet celebrations a greater variety of the chemist's materials are used. The sparks of the sparklers are tiny bits of iron or steel that shoot out into space when they become heated. Magnesium, one of the lightest of our metals, which is the stuff that flashlight powders are made of, provides the bright light of the sparklers and the flares.

Celebrating youngsters are armed with safe pistols, loaded so as to fire a fabulous number of times. A mixture of a rare metal cerium with about one-fifth iron, when it is struck by pulling the trigger sends a streams of harmless sparks out of the tin barrel. Though this is a new top, it operates the same as the cigar lighter or gas lighter that father or mother used.

Different kinds of metals provide the color of fireworks. The sodium that common table salt contains gives an intense yellow flame, and the metal strontium is responsible for most of the red light. Barium salts or the metal itself give green light, as does copper and its salts, such as copper sulphate, commonly known as blue vitriol. This later compound, by the way, is the stuff that is sprinkled on the winter's log-fire to produce green flames.

The world war gave an impetus to fireworks manufacture when the chemists and powder experts strived to devise more powerful incendiary material, more dense smoke-producing chemicals and better visual signalling materials. But planned to destroy and to baffle, the thermit bombs and the smoke pots of war hardly pit into the modern celebration of the Fourth.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

POLITICS STRANGER THAN BUSINESS

[Philadelphia Public Ledger]

James E. Ferguson, a Texas banker, is a candidate for nomination on the democratic primary ticket as United States senator. So is his wife. There is quite a bit of newspaper comment on this queer situation of husband and wife seeking nomination for the same office.

There's another phase of the affair that apparently has received no notice so far. That is this: Ferguson was governor of Texas. Five years ago he was impeached. Ten of the twenty-one charges to which he answered in the state senate were sustained. He was cast out of office and disqualified from holding any state office of honor, trust or profit.

Now he aspires to the United States senate. A federal senatorship is not a state office, although a senator represents the state.

It is not likely that the banker will get the primary nomination, or that his wife will receive it, yet the situation presents a possibility of a person disqualified from holding a state office occupying the highest office in the gift of a state.

Politics is stranger than business.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

"Fighting" parsons are likely to be the type preaching intolerance.

It is a little hard to discuss them with frankness, lest the critic himself be led into the sin of intolerance.

HENRY JAMES

Evils there are, of course, and the privilege of denouncing them not to be withheld from fighting parsons, pacific parsons, or anybody else.

When a man declares from the pulpit that the flapper is bound to hell and taking most of the world along, it is possible to infer that he is not absolute authority.

The individual who wants to do the thinking for his neighbors, and believes it his duty to formulate every opinion that is fit to express, is guilty of intolerance. But let him express his own opinion, and let it go at that. Otherwise, others get intolerant, too.

Recently another of the "fighting" type was booed off the rostrum as he was praising the ku klux outfit. It seemed to be his belief that these besheeted prowlers of the night were on the trail of the same sorts of wickedness distasteful to him. He was intolerant of the things they assailed, but quite tolerant of their indecent methods of assault.

Perhaps an excellent way to meet moral emergencies would be for every individual to do the best he knows, a rule that will be likely to improve him, partly through its tendency to teach him to mind his own business.

After studying the case of a bigamist and swindler now in prison, a doctor says that evil and good are at war in the man. For this reason the prisoner is declared to be like Jekyll and Hyde.

Evil and good are at war in every man. One permits the evil to predominate, and the police lock him up. Another recognizes the value of rejecting the evil impulse, and letting the good be the incentive of action. He wins the privilege of remaining free, and of calling the first a "Jekyll and Hyde."

Whoever elects evil to be his guide will be judged by the worst that is in him. That there also lies dormant in his composition, the seed of good, will not help him when the day comes for paying the penalty.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

A queer lot, we humans. Calf-brained, dunderheaded, soft-headed, blundering. Trying to conceal ourselves from each other. Never daring to let ourselves go. A lot of blighted hypocrites. Selfish and mean and contemptible. And yet——

We always thought the Curlews were unhappy. The old man seemed soured. He hobbled about on his cane, swearing and grouching, glaring up through the bush of his eyebrows. One never heard him say a pleasant thing to his wife. He complained of what she did and said and thought in her presence and out of it. Mrs. Pilgrim and I wondered that she was able to put up with him.

"I would leave that old crank," Mrs. P. used to say, viciously. "But just before I left him I would smash a carafe over that silly old head."

Mrs. Curlew seemed to disregard the old man completely. His rumblings and grunts and outcries passed serenely over her head. She did not even say to him that he was an old fool, which is the very mildest thing a self-respecting wife could say to such a husband. She only now and then yielded to the old heathen in some minor matter. Whenever he could he got away from home. He fished in the season and hunted in the season and ran down south and went to Canada. Mrs. Curlew stayed at home.

"It's best so," she used to say. "It will do Mr. Curlew good to get away from home."

Then Mrs. Curlew died. No one thought he would grieve. A sour, selfish, cantankerous, snarling, snappish, bad-tempered old man, was the way we thought of him. His wife's death would free him from the disagreeable duty of paying some slight attention to her. He could stay away from home all the time now. Free as a bird—if there are any birds as temperamentally curdled as Old Man Curlew is.

But the old man is dying of a broken heart. He hardly hobbles into the sun at all now. He spends all his time in the house where Mrs. Curlew was alone so long. He has grown thin and pale and weak. His doctor told me the truth. He cannot be saved, he said. Old Man Curlew does not want to be saved.

"Don't ever love any one," Curlew said to me with a shadowy pretense of the full-bodied growl one used to hear from him. "Do not ever permit yourself to love any one. Because you suffer so when they have gone."

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA E. STEWART

A certain group of women is scoring the United States government for classing women in the home as "unproductive," and is demanding a "proper recognition" of the housewife's efforts. They feel that by such classification, the ideology which is a stumbling-block to the relations of men and women in industry is fostered.

Of course no thinking man or woman would call home women, the working type, unproductive. There are mothers and wives who do more of actual manual labor each day in the home, whose hours are much longer, whose duties require immeasurably more of all qualities of mind and body than do those of the so-called "working woman" outside the home.

But there is another class of wives and mothers who labor not, neither do they spin. Loving most personal adornment and personal pleasure, they delegate their duties to servants and live parasitically on the men who furnish the money to gratify their selfish ambitions and desires. There is a wide gulf fixed between the two types of women in the home. How can a mere government differentiate?

The point is, why does such an obvious truth need further defining. The womanly woman in the home knows that she has recognition of her wifely and motherly accomplishments. The comfort of husband, the love of her children, the harmonious atmosphere of her home—these work out into infinitely greater reward for her than any public recognition could bring her. She still works from love of her tasks, which take to themselves for her the wings of inspiration at times as she realizes that, paradoxically, in them lies her chance for helping the world outside the walls of home.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

The Mongolian antelope can run at a speed of at least 60 miles an hour, according to Roy C. Andrews, of the American Museum of Natural History.

The Chinese and Japanese dug oil wells in the early centuries of the Christian era. Some of them were as much as 900 feet deep.

The dye most widely used in this country is sulphur black which is prepared from carbolic and nitric acids. In 1919, 13 American manfacturers produced a total of 14,500,000 pounds, some of the brands being superior to the finest imported from Germany before the war.

The polar snow-caps of Mars not only grow and shrink with the Martian seasons, but also vary in size from year to year, apparently on account of fluctuations in the amount of heat given off by the sun.

THE MILLERS GIVE FAREWELL DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Miller of 715 North Kenwood street entertained recently at a farewell dinner, Mr. and Mrs. Miles S. Gregory of Los Angeles, who are leaving within a few days for New York to sail for London to visit Daphne Pollard, the pocket-size comedienne, who is a sister of Mrs. Gregory and Mrs. Miller. Miss Pollard has been one of the most successful of all the actresses ever sent out by the Pacific coast into the big theatrical world. For the past five years she has not been able to get away from the London stage with the exception of a period that she spent in vaudeville in the east at one of the highest salaries ever paid to a single entertainer. She was drawn back to London by an offer of a contract for two years at a salary said to be in excess of $2000 a week. An interesting bit of gossip about her is that she is to retire temporarily this summer to await an important domestic event.

EPWORTH LEAGUE HAS BIG MEETING

The Epworth league of Pacific Avenue Methodist church held a very enthusiastic business meeting Monday evening at the home of the Misses Irene and Alta Gervais, 112 West Chestnut street. Harold Hemingway, president, presided.

At this time plans were made for a social get-together, to be held in the church parlors Tuesday evening, July 11. Mrs. Donald Magill is in charge of the evening. Plans were also discussed for a birthday social, to be held some time in October, definite arrangements to be made later.

Mrs. Magill was appointed a delegate to the Epworth league institute, being held at Pacific Palisades.

RAGEDY OF MONEY OLD BY CHESTER S. PROUT

angelist Discusses the Strike Situation at Thronged Gathering

The present perplexing indus- l situation throughout the ld is a significant indication t the coming of Christ is near hand. The prophesy of the stle, James, concerning the fe that would exist between ital and labor just preceding the ning of the Lord, is fast meeting fulfillment, and believers in 's word are admonished to be ient, because only the charac- s of Christ will entitle the holder become heir of the heavenly nes."

vangelist Chester S. Prout in discourse at the Gospel taber- le in Eagle Rock City on West orado boulevard and Rowland nue, last night on the "Tragedy Money, and the Gathering In- trial Storm Clouds," gave many ts to show that the Savior's re- n is imminent. "There is trou- ahead for those who have es- ed great riches at the expense the worker, who in turn have nd it difficult to acquire the e necessities of life. In spite the unprecedented industrial sperity induced by the late war, ny laborers find themselves fac- the future with despair. Think three thousand strikes in one r, and one hundred lockouts, average of sixty strikes a week. cords kept by the government at shington, covering the past five rs, show these figures to be the rly average in the United tes for this period. Political rs last but a few years at the gest point. It appears also not be lessening, but growing in ensity.

"Strikes in the year of 1919 show estimated loss of $800,000,000 employes, and of $1,300,000,000 employers, besides an immense s to the public. Between the ikes there is a slumbering dis- tent which is almost equally stly. As expressed by Judge ay, 'head of the steel trust, 'the ll of energy or effort to accom- sh is not one half what it was rmerly.' This is the condition affairs at a time when the rld's industrial system is like a relict at sea—a part of it sub- rged, and none of it high above waves.

"The editor of the Current Opin- inquires, 'While the nations holding conferences to end war, at are we doing to end indus- al strife?' 'A great deal,' the itor adds, 'is being done to in- sify it. All the radicals, right, nter and left, socialists, com- nists, syndicalists, bolshevists, archists, are doing their best to the flames, on the principle at the worse the industrial sys- m grows, the sooner it will come an end and give to them a ance to apply their cure-alls, as Russia."

"The writer of the book of mes, addressing the class of this y, who have amassed wealth re- rdless of the interests of their llow men, says to them: 'Go to w ye rich men, weep and howl r the miseries that shall come on you. Your riches are cor- pted, and your garments are oth-eaten. Your gold and silver cankered; and the rust of them all be a witness against you, and all eat your flesh as it were with e. Ye have heaped treasure to- ether for the last days.' James 1-3.

"'By every species,' says an- her writer, 'of extortion and rob- ery, men have been piling up olossal fortunes,' while multitudes their fellow-beings were in dis- ess for the lack of the necessities life. The land is full of men ho have laid up treasure for emselves, but are not rich toward od. The industrial sky-scrapers, hich men have taken pride in earing heaven-ward, have not been uilt with any purpose of glory- ring their God of heaven. God nd His law and the principles of is government as applied in the olden Rule, has not been in their houghts. When the finger of God ouches these monuments of hu- an pride, as some day it will, ey will crumble quickly into the ust.

"Behold, says the apostle, the ire of the laborers who have eaped down your fields ,which is f you kept back by fraud, crieth; nd the cries of them which have eaped are entered into the ears f the Lord Saboath. Ye have ved in pleasure on the earth, and een wanton; ye have nourished our hearts as in the day of slaugh- er. Ye have condemned and killed he just, and he doth not resist ou. 'The heartless greed of cove- ous men has been responsible for any deaths; they crush the life ut of their victims no less truly han does the python when it seizes ts prey in the jungle. The eye of od notes the death of the just whose lives are sacrificed in this way. His judgments are in the and today for these things.

"A man is not to be condemned merely for being rich. But men of wealth should remember that t is God who gives them the abil- ty to acquire what they possess, and that they are stewards and not absolute owners of their wealth; for 'the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof.' Great wealth confers great power, which may be used for good or for evil. Unfortunately, most men who ac- quire wealth use it selfishly. On the other hand, selfishness and in- justice are not confined to the rich. The rich look down upon the poor, forgetting that God places them all upon an equality; and the poor are filled with bit- terness toward the rich, which too often finds expression in acts of violence.

"The gospel of Christ provides the only cure for this industrial conflict. The Golden Rule, put in- to practice by all, would, at once, overnight, relax the tension be- tween employer and employe, and sooth out the most difficult indus- trial feelings. For it is the greed and passions of men that makes these problems intricate and so often difficult of solution. It is possible to bring peace into our world by the application of the Golden Rule; and it is possible, un- der God, for all men to practice this golden rule of conduct. The difficulty is not that men canont do it, but that they will not. They will not until they are born again. The ceaseless and deepening in- dustrial conflict of this time calls loudly for greater activity on the part of those whose work it is to spread the gospel in the world.

"There can never be world peace so long as there is industrial war. Men cannot become peace- ful at heart while fighting over the proportionate share of the profits of industry. World peace will be the outcome of peace in the heart. So long as there is fighting between individuals there will be fighting between classes, and so long as there is fighting between classes there will be fight- ing between nations. God's coun- sel to the poor at this time is not to resist oppression by violence, but to be patient. He says: 'Be patient, therefore, Brethren, unto the coming of the Lord. Stabilize your hearts, for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh' Jas. 5:7,8."

The evangelist announced that the lecture subject for Wednesday evening will be, "Startling Fulfill- ments of Bible Prophesies Con- cerning the Jews and Palestine."

CAMPFIRE CLUB BECOMES GIRL RESERVES

Eagle Rock Young Folks Swing Into Live Organzation

Eighteen girls of Eagle Rock city last week gathered at Central school to organize a Campfire club, with Miss Christiansen as their guardian. Officers were elected, but later, when they began to make inquiries about the work of the Campfire club, it was learned that the movement is dying out and the Girl Reserves, which is a national organization, is taking its place.

A second meeting was held on Monday at 2 o'clock, at which time it was decided that they would dissolve the recently organized Campfire club and join the Girl Reserves. This was done, re-electing all of the officers of the other organization with one exception, and retaining Miss Christiansen, of the Central school, as guardian.

The uniform of the Girl Reserves is very attractive—white middy and skirt, dark blue tie, white sailor hat, and armlets with tri- angles of different colors, to distin- guish grammar school girls, high school girls and business girls.

There are certain honors which the girls work for, and they are awarded honor pins and rings. It is hoped that all girls in the com- munity who are eligible will join.

The next meeting will be a picnic at Brookside park, leaving Eagle Rock city on the 2:20 bus. They will have a picnic supper there, go in swimming during the after- noon, possibly have a speaker there to tell about the work of the Girl Reserves, and then hike home in the moonlight. All girls who are interested are invited to attend.

EAGLE ROCK HOLDS OLD-FASHIONED FOURTH

Practically Only Place in County, Where Small Boy Was Gleeful

The glorious Fourth has come and gone the day of all its prede- cessors, but a wonderful picture will remain in the memory of all those who were fortunate enough to see the display of fireworks last night.

Eagle Rock is practically the last place where fireworks of the old- fashioned variety can be shot. There were skyrockets, Roman candles, pinwheels, to say nothing of the continual popping of fire- crackers. The small boy was in his glory, to say nothing of father, who found 50 excuses for helping him celebrate.

Sane Fourths may be safe ones, but it sends a thrill through one to see a skyrocket soaring up through the air, and the thousands of motorists driving along Colo- rado boulevard slowed down or parked their machines to watch the display. There were no accidents during the day, as far as could be learned.

OPTIMIST LOOKED FORWARD TO END OF LIFE

L. De Vere Stacpoole, Author, aWs Willing to Go Half Way Over

By DAVID L. BLUMENFELD, United Press Staff Correspondent.

LONDON (By Mail).—In search for an answer to the question: Where we go after this life? We can turn from the scientist to the man of pure imagination.

A few years ago, England was taken by storm by the charm and delight of the works of H. de Vere Stacpole, a genial six-foot Irish- man, whose "Blue Lagoon" has now run into hundreds of thou- sands.

"Stacky," as his friends call him, is a great big fellow, simple-mind- ed, broad-sensed, utterly at sea with mathematical and scientific problems, but with a brain capable of portraying the simple romance of life with a charm of manner which no other living author in England can rival. He, too, be- lieves in an after life.

In his little Essex home, where he lives with his wife and his two dogs, "Whiskey" and "Fan," he gave me his views on what he thought would happen to him when his time was up and the Eternity Limited stopped at his depot.

"I don't want to die," Stacpole said.

"That's only natural, but I'm not afraid when my turn comes along. In fact, if it weren't for the very real joy of living today. I should almost look forward to it. You see, I don't think there's anything cruel or hard, or cold, or terrifying about death. We go whence we came and we go with the knowl- edge and experience gained in this life, which makes all the differ- ence. To my mind, I shall lose or miss nothing when I die."

"Stacky" stooped to pat "Whis- key," his Aberdeen terrier.

"Take 'Whiskey' here. Do you think that he, when he goes to his little grave, which I shall dig for him under those tall pines out there in my garden, do you think he is going to be lost to me? Not a bit of it. Of course you aren't, are you, old boy?" and the grizzled old Aberdeen wagged his tail and hung out his tongue in one of those devoted grins which only a dog can make.

"Time means nothing over the other side," he continued, "where you, and I, and King George and the poorest man in the world are going. I'm dead, let's say. Well, what does it matter whether I died at Waterloo, Gettysburg or Gideon, where Joshua held up his arms, commanding the sun and the moon to stand still? It's all the same. Time, as we know it, doesn't exist. I die, and as far as I am concerned in the flight of time, my friends and my dogs are with me. Wells got pretty near the mark in his 'Time Machine'—a book, you re- member, which treated scientifical- ly of a perfected instrument which put the clock back thousands of years. It's perfectly feasible, to my mind, to think that when I die I shall be able to live in any cen- tury I choose. If it is possible to construct mentally the future, isn't it more possible to reconstruct the past?"

PECULIAR, LIKE THE MAN

George Moore, the English novel- ist, and a group of other literati were discussing recent books. Mr. Moore wished to refer to the au- thor of a new publication, but could not recall his name. "You know," said Moore, "the man with the funny name. Dear, dear, what is it? You know, a stupid name, a silly name." "Shaw?" suggested someone. "That's it," said Moore. "Shaw! What an extraordinary name!"

GERMAN PRICES RISE AS MARK HITS SKIDS

Americans Are Charged Higher Prices Than the Natives

By CARL D. GROAT, United Press Staff Correspondent.

BERLIN, July 3.—Germany is undergoing an unparalleled era of high cost of living.

In the past eight months, during the absence of the writer in Amer- ica, prices in marks—not in dollars as Americans reckon them—have soared to unbelievable heights.

For the most part, prices of food- stuffs and wearing apparel have gone up three to fivefold, while wages have not increased more than two to threefold. Meat is six- fold as dear as eight months ago.

In the same period the mark has gone down threefold. When the writer left Germany last fall, the mark stood around 100 to the dol- lar, while recently it has been run- ning from around 280 to 300 to the dollar.

Americans find that many prices, for them, are lower than in the states, but in many hotels and stores about the country the Amer- ican is charged a price higher than the native, which overcomes the advantage which he might have from the valuta.

The German in many instances, seems to resent that the visitor can buy more goods or more food for his dollars here than at home. And the prevailing impression that America is a land where one finds dollars on the trees or in the street seems to heighten this resentment.

This arises perhaps, from the fact that for the German the high cost of living has become an ex- tremely difficult problem, even though he now receives an average of 1000 marks a week wages as against 400 to 500 eight months ago and 40 to 50 marks a week in prewar times.

TO KEEP IN THE SHADE

In the early days there was a railroad in Tennessee which al- lowed its conductors to make their own rules affecting the traveling public. Sometimes one conductor had rules in direct conflict with the other. One of the conductors would permit passengers to take their dogs into the coaches with them. The conductor running op- posite would not allow a dog on his train, not even in the baggage car. One day some hunters, re- turning to the city, met the con- ductor who would not allow a dog to ride on his train. When the train left the station the dog fol- lowed tied to the train, and had no difficulty in keeping up with it. When the conductor saw what was happening he was highly incensed over the disrespect shown to his train. "Watch your old dog when we start down grade," he stormed, "and see what happens to him. You think you are making fun of my train." A lattle later, when on the downgrade, the conductor ap- proached the rear platform, and not seeing the dog, called to the owner: "Now tell me, please, what has become of your dog?" "Right here," retorted the passenger, pointing to a big hole in the floor of the coach, "see him under there? He just came under the coach to trot along in the shade."

FUNDAMENTALS OF RELIGION IS REV. ISAAC'S SUBJECT

We deeply regret that through inadvertence on our part, the re- port of Dr. E. Morgan Isaac's ser- mon was omitted from Monday's issue of the Daily Press. It fol- lows:

Speaking on "The True Funda- metals of Religion," he said in part:

For ages men have been misled by thinking that the authority in religion was something external, coming from some outer source, either a book, a church, a creed, or some revelation. This concep- tion has kept the world in fear and torment, has tied the wheels of progress, retarded the emancipa- tion of the race, confused the minds of the multitudes, and made possible the enslavement of millions to the dictations of cunning men, who have, in many instances, wielded to tyranny of their power most mercilessly. The Bible, phil- osophy, science and common sense unite in teaching us that all reli- gious authority is within man himself. Within him is the image and law of God. There God speaks through the voice commonly known to us as the "moral sense." There is the seat of all love, all life, all beauty, all intelligence, and all law and liberty.

If asked to specify some of the fundamentals of religion, I would begin by saying, first, God is Spirit, hence, all worship must be in spirit and in truth. Spirit is life, love, intelligence, will, power and wisdom. Second, man is spirit, the very same in essence as God Himself, otherwise He could not be a son of God. God is the Uni- versal Spirit, man is the individual spirit. As a son of God man is an expression of the eternal, a worker with the Father, and when at his best, is doing the Father's will on earth as it is done in heaven, or in the heavenlies, the world of spiritual realities, the world of life the world of love unalloyed with one impure thought. For it must ever be remembered that heaven is more a condition than a place, for with God the Eternal Spirit, there is no one place of greater import- ance than some other place, for the universe is His House and our Home. Third, the fundamental ex- pression of religion is oneness with God. For this the Master prayed for us all, and this unity with the Father was His constant tetsimony regarding His own experience. Man comes into a state of con- sciousness of this unity when he responds to the inner urge of the Spirit, the image of God within his bosom. There will be found God's law, love, power, and there God will do exceeding abundantly above all we ask or think according to the power that worketh in us.

Theories of salvation conceived on the plane of material commer- cialism, doled out for a price, be that price suffering or sacrifice, is all out of harmony with Infinite Love and Wisdom. You canot com- mercialize eternal values. You can- not make man, who is a son of God, a mere victim of misdeeds, committed in the remoté past, nor is his salvation subject to any doc- trine or theory, be it ever so rever- ed because of age and traditional lore. God is no infinite potentate, demanding the last farthing. God is our Father, even though we be prodigals and in a far country, and we are His children. His love is boundless, His Life is limitless, His wisdom is infinite, and destruc- tion and revenge are as unknown to Him as darkness is unknown to light; for God is love, and love is life, and life is undying. This is the message Jesus brought to this earth two thousand years ago, and this is the saving message the world is hungry for today.

MRS. ANGUS GIVES LAWN RECEPTION

One of the most delightful af- fairs of the early summer season was the lawn party on Monday afternoon, given by Mrs. J. E. Ar- gus, 535 East Hill avenue, in honor of a group of friends from Fesno, who are spending the Fourth in town.

The beautiful grounds of the Argus home, with their wide lawns and trees, make a charming set- ting for a garden party, and Mrs. Argus is noted for her hospitality. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. John Wise, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Nicolai, Mr. and Mrs. Castleton and Mr. Demp- sey.

TWO ACCIDENTS ON VERDUGO ROAD

Two autos, of which F. M. White, 701 Lamar street, and Joseph V. Griffin, were the drivers, met on Verdugo road at high noon yester- day. Except for a bending of tin, no damage was done.

A truck belonging to the Olson Lumber company of Santa Monica, and a car driven by Albert Schum- berg, 2920 Crestmore place, tan- gled horns at the intersection of the Southern Pacific tracks and Los Feliz road, yesterday after- noon. A misunderstanding of sig- nals was responsible for the storm session.

A recital was given last Friday evening to present two of the violin pupils of Miss Esther Gleiss, at the lovely home of Mrs. C. D. New- house, 230 North Satsuma street.

Miss Ruth Newhouse, who is a clever and serious little student, played with much ease and grace.

Miss Mary Barbara Taylor, an- other talented pupil, showed a marked degree of poise and assur- ance in playing.

They were assisted by Miss Ruth Thompson, pianiste, who played some of her own compositions; Mrs. Newhouse, who gave a very enjoyable reading; little Anis Danielson, who gave a piano selec- tion, and Miss Esther Gleiss, who played several violin numbers. At the close of the program there was an interpretative dance by Misses Ruth Clausen, Ruth Newhouse and Mary Barbara Taylor.

MRS. BUCKHAM TELLS PRIME NEED OF COUNTRY

Record Attendance Hears Appeal for Law and Constitution

A record attendance assembled in the First Methodist church Sun- day morning to hear Mrs. Lela Buckham present the need for a more respectful attitude toward the constitution and the law of the land, previous to the sermon, namely:

"'The Literary Digest' has laid itself open to severe criticism by its recent move to take a poll of the nation on the prohibition amendment," declared Mrs. Buck- ham, who lives at 332 West Lex- ington drive. "The poll on prohi- bition is as uncalled for as a poll of the nation on the slavery amend- ment or the suffrage amendment. There is opposition to each of these, and yet no one thinks of either of them as an open question. The prohibition amendment is just as much a part of the constitution of this land as either of the others. To attack it is to attack the fun- damentals of our government. The question that faces the American people today is not a question of wet or dry but is rather a question of law and order, or anarchy and turmoil."

Following her spirited presenta- tion, the following resolutions were adopted by an enthusiastic, unan- imous vote:

"Whereas, the Literary Digest has taken action requesting a se- cret ballot of the people of the United States on the prohibition amendment; and

"Whereas, the origin of this strange and most extraordinary proceeding has not been made pub- lic, but savors strongly of anarchy in its most insiduous form; and

"Whereas, prohibition has been firmly written into our constitution by the vote of 45 states; and

"Whereas, balloting upon this subject is unnecessary and a real menace to our constitutional form of government; and

"Whereas, the question before us today is not prohibition, but is the loyal support of the United States by law-abiding citizens; therefore,

"Be it resolved, taht we, the members and friends of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Glendale, Calif., do hereby condemn and deplore such a move as that instituted by the Literary Digest as suspicious, uncalled for, abso- lutely inexcusable and from every standpoint un-American; and be it further

"Resolved, that we most earnest- ly hope that the pages of this great weekly will in the future be devoted to more worthy subjects; and be it still further

"Resolved, that copies of these resolutions be sent to the editor of the Literary Digest, and to each of the Glendale daily papers."

WHITE TEA ROOM MAKES SUCCESS

Opening Tuesday Draws a Steady Stream of Pleased Patrons

Eagle Rock is putting on all the airs of a big city. A tearoom was opened yesterday at 109 East Colorado boulevard which will lend distinction to the town. It is known as White's Confectionery - Tea Shoppe. It is a most attractive place, furnished in mission style, with high-backed booths and artis- tically decorated soda fountain. The lights follow out the general scheme of decoration.

The opening yesterday was most auspicious. There was a steady stream of patrons all during the day, and they were enthusiastic in their praise. Mrs. White has been most fortunate in securing a very competent chef, who has recently come here from the Adams house, Phoenix, Ariz. He certainly knows how to make coffee.

A special business men's lunch will be served every day, and, in addition, the tea shoppe will carry a full line of high-class confection- ery and drinks, hand-made pastry, salads and cold meats.

RUSSIAN OBJECTIVE OF AIRSHIP ROUTING

ROME, July 3.—Italy, Germany, France and England have entered into a keen competition for prece- dence in the opening of aerial routes and communications with Russia.

Without awaiting the re-estab- lishment of diplomatic relations and although pledged not to enter into separate agreements with the Soviets until after the Hague con- ference, they have already mapped out and secured permission for the establishment of at least half a dozen great international aerial lines that will link up the prin- cipal Russian centers with all the big western European capitals.

Although these aerial lines are being established ostensibly for commercial purposes, no secret is made of the fact that the real mo- tive back of their construction is that of securing political prestige and advantages in Russia.

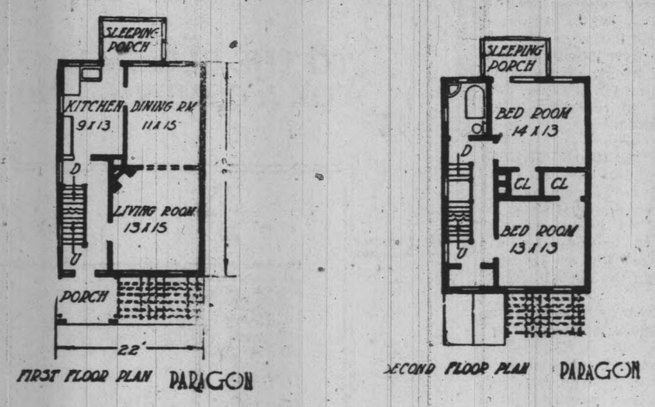
Art and Economy in Home Building

Submitted by the National Builders' Bureau



A Home of Impressive Appearance

If we felt like being slangy today, we would remark that there is "class" to this home. There is not a freakish or unusual note in it. It is conservative, and yet by its very simplicity it subtly indicates elegance and refinement.

It is the kind of house that would look well in the best residential neighborhoods among any neighbors. It is, perhaps, the very type of home which you plan to build this summer.

If so, clip out this house plan and discuss its cost with your builder or architect.

Far Seeing Home Builders

are rapidly becoming impressed with the

Economical Claims of Brick Construction

There is a slight increase in initial cost over materials that require constant expenditures for preservation; but this is overcome in a few years by saving in insurance and upkeep, and the home is proof against the action of the elements.

PICKS UP RADIO FROM PHILIPPINES

The Lamport & Holt liner Vauban pased through 6000 miles of unual radio activity on the run from Buenos Ayres.

Soon after clearing from Rio de neiro the ship's operators heard series of news bulletins which re being sent out from the ited States government radio tion in the Philippines.

The messages, which had to do th world events, were exceptionly strong and clear, but occasionly they were jammed by interfernce from radio stations at San ancisco and Hawaii. They were ard at intervals until the Vauban d crossed the equator. The Vauban's operators said the static conitions in the Atlantic were exceedngly favorable for long distance nsmission and there was much culation on board as to whether Philippine messages were comg over the continents of Africa South America. The ship's ofers estimated the shortest disnce to be between 1,000 and 11,000miles.

While the Vauban was lying in e harbor of Buenos Ayres, which about 6000 miles from New York, e radio operators said they read sages being sent from New York ships at sea and got news bulleins from the British station of efield at Oxford.

FRENCH TRAINS GET RADIO

Numerous disastrous accidents French railways in the last two ars, which have spread alarm ong the traveling public, have used French railway officials to eriment with radio telephones communicating between moving ains and stations.

In recent tests caried out by the mpagnie du Nord under the dicion of the French ministry of blic works, experimenters succded in transmitting orders from ferent points in the station at urget-Triage to the switching wers up to a distance of more an 400 yards. According to reorts of the United States consul Bordeaux, portable apparatus ed is described as consisting of antenna in a frame, a commutar, a stick tipped with iron to ace in the ground, and a microone, the total weight of which s fifteen pounds. Other experients were made between places the station and a train moving at speed of nineteen miles an hour. he results were satisfactory as r as hearing the message was ncerened. They could be heard tisfactorily during the entire me the train remained in motion r a distance of more than ten iles, irrespective of the speed of e train.

AS AID TO BUSINESS

American business has, with its haracteristic promptness, been ick to seize upon the advantages ffered by radio broadcasting. hroughout the country departent stores are planning to erect ations, if possible, to aid them in e problems of advertising and lling. Five hundred representaves of the National Dry Goods ssociation considered that problm in New York some weeks ago. However, quite apart from the taller's point of view, which must evitably be influenced largely by nsiderations of publicity quite as uch as of business, certain trade rganizations are using or planning use the radio to disseminate inormation in the same manner as e Chicago Board of Trade is now ending out crop reports to the rmers.

As a consequence, there is now oing out regularly a broadcast mong members of the silk trade, iving quotations and other up-to-e minute market information. everal other lines are using this ethod with more or less regularity. And the department of comerce is assisting by broadcasting abled information from abroad to hose interested, as for instance, report of automobile conditions rom South America to automobile anufacturers in the United tates.

BROADCASTING STOCK QUOTATIONS

It is reported in the New York nancial district that a new comany is being formed for the purose of "broadcasting" stock market quotations as they come from he ticker, keeping up a steady flow f market news from the opening ntil the close of the session. Members of the stock exchange, in iew of the present wording of the onstitution about the use of quotations, are inclined to scoff at the roposal, but most of them admit hat it is a question of time until t will be necessary for the use of he new method in getting the financial news quickly to all parts of the country.

RADIO FOR LONELY ISLE

The Rev. Henry Martyn Rogers nd his wife, British missionaries, have sailed on the Tacoma Maru rom Cape Town for the lonely island, Tristan da Cunha, in the South Atlantic ocean, 1500 miles west of the South African coast. Mr. Rogers will take up the duties of chaplain to the 119 people of polyglot mixture who inhavit the island; his wife will interest more particularly the children.

The intense isolation of Tristan appealed to the people of Cape Town. A suggestion from the staff of the education department there to present a wireless set to Mr. Rogers was quickly taken up and an apparatus with a range of 1000 to 1500 miles was given him.

According to a dispatch from Stockholm, Sweden and the United States will have direct telegraphic communication through the erection of highpower radio station on the Swedish west coast.

SIDELIGHTS

One of the most powerful radio broadcasting stations in the United States is to be erected at Hutchinson, Kan. It will have a daytime sending range of several thousand miles and it is said that at night it should be able to communicate with the whole world.

Recently a receiving set was put up hurriedly in a church in order to give the congregation a treat with the new form of entertainment. The builder got his aerial too close to highpower electric wires and had a dismal time. In another church more ingenuity was shown when the radio apparatus failed to register. Two enterprising members of the entertainment committee corralled a phonograph which they placed outside the entertainment hall under an open window. The uninitiated did not detect anything out of the way, and marvelled at the wonders of radio.

F. W. Dunmore of the radio laboratory of the United States bureau of standards has worked out a very compact radio set, complete with batteries, condensers, vacuum tubes and other paraphernalia, all contained in a little grip hardly larger than a lawyer's brief case.

A Philadelphia builder announces that he will build $1,000,000 worth of high-class apartment houses and will equip each with a radio telephone. In the fashionable Clevy Chase suburb of Washington, bungalows are being offered for sale equipped with long-distance radio antennae. One set of antennae serves for an entire group of bungalows, each of which is connected with the main aerial.

G. S. and T. L. Corpe of El Monte are planning to establish one of the most powerful instruments for radio transmission and receiving that they can obtain. During the war Goodspeed Corpe served as wireless operator and instructor in the United States army.

Los Angeles' broadcasting of orchestration has been reported as far away as British Columbia and in Fremont, Neb.

Your Voice Heard Before You Speak

"We have spring vegetables at Christmas, the women wear furs in summer, we get Sunday papers Saturday night, we make 24-year-old whisky in 20 minutes; a man called on the telephone in San Francisco from New York hears our voice hours before we speak." Thank goodness today is still the yesterday of tomorrow.—Chicago Daily News.

ST. LOUIS SHOW IN JULY

It is being announced that a big radio show is to be held at the Coliseum in St. Louis, July 3 to 8, inclusive. This show is in charge of the Southwest Exhibitors' association. Efforts are being made to have this show one of the best events of the season. Spaces are being taken rapidly by manufacturers throughout the country.

REMOTE ISLE GETS NEWS

A small island in the middle of the South Atlantic, belonging to the British, possesses a population of 120. The inhabitants have been practically isolated for years, but two missionaries recently carried in supplies and took along with them a radio receiving set. The island, Tristanda da Cunha, is no more than the top of a mountain.

WORLD RADIO MEETING PLANNED

Plans are being made for a meeting this summer, probably in July, of the International Union for Scientific Radio Telegraphy, which will bring together at Brussels, leading radio experts of the nations of the world. Scientific questions and co-operation between the research activities of different countries will be considered.

Dr. L. W. Austin, head of the United States naval radio research section and vice-president of the International union, will be one of the American delegates.

BEATS ALL RECORDS ON TRAIN RECEPTION

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — While the members of a party were traveling on a train near Lula, Miss., they were "listening in" on what was in the ether to while away the time. The train was traveling at 30 miles an hour and the party clearly heard the Hatfield Electric company broadcasting station at Indianapolis, Ind., WOH. The location of th etrain was 530 miles from Indianapolis.

NEW RADIO STATION IN RUSSIA

Work on the construction of the new radiotelegraph station at Dyetsky village is approaching completion. The old station was destroyed in 1919 in the Yudenitch advance. All that remained were the workmen's dwellings some distance from the station. A special railway branch was made to aid in the reconstruction which was begun in September, 1920.

Dough Talks—By Aairplane

Radio messages from New York, San Francisco, and other distant points, controlled the electrical baking apparatus with which a loaf of bread was baked at the Muncie, Ind., food show last week. Even dough talks by radio today.

PARIS POLICE PLAN EXTENSIVE USE OF RADIO

Wireless telephony and airplanes gave Paris the quietest May day in history, enabling police groups to be shifted quickly to points wherever manifestations seemed to be concentrating. As a result, only a few insignificant streets fights followed the annual labor reunion in the Federation's headquarters, with no serious injuries.

Throughout the afternoon three airplanes hovered over the city and its suburbs, in wireless telephone and telegraph communication with the prefecture of police and the Place de la Republique, whence police maneuvers always are directed.

For several weeks Chief of Police Leuillier has been experimenting with the use of wireless. Today he expressed the fullest confidence that in less than a month every station would be equipped with the necessary sending and receiving apparatus, while automobile patrols, similarly equipped would visit the more populous districts day and night. It is estimated that this will enable the city materially to decrease the present police force.

APPEAL TO PUBLIC INTEREST

Possibilities of the wireless telephone as a means of appeal to public interest were demonstrated in a call sounded in behalf of the citizen's military training camps, by Major General Robert L. Bullard, commanding the second corps area.

This call was broadcasted from the army wireless telephone on Bedloe's Island, where the statue of liberty is located. A call was sent out one evening and reached the 30,000 amateur wireless fans on the army circuit. They were requested to use ordinary telephone in acknowledging the message, it was said.

Within fifteen minutes after the call was sent out the telephone in the office of Major Harvey H. Fletcher, recruiting adjutant, began to ring. It has been ringing ever since and several hundred applications from young men to attend these camps have been received.

INTERFERENCE BY BROADCASTING STATIONS

Broadcasting stations should shut off transmitters when not in actual operation to prevent unnecessary interference from carrier wave.

Care should be taken not to extend schedules resulting in interference with the schedules of other stations.

Transmitters must be adjusted so as not to produce unnecessary intereference. It has come to the attention of the bureau that some stations have interfered over a band of from 200 to 500 meters which may be reported as a violation of the law.

The Once Over

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE

By H. I. PHILLIPS

(As it might read if, as suggested by President Harding in a conference with correspondents, written without criticism of the administration and without giving offense to anybody).

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Cal Coolidge, vice-president, was in town recently on government business. Cal is looking well and isn't troubled with his dyspepsia any more.

Laddie, the White House Airedale, was seen sitting on the steps of the Senate Building scratching his right ear furiously with his right hind leg by a Democratic senator Tuesday last, and there is talk of a congressional inquiry.

Doc Sawyer, the President's personal physician, had a peculiar accident last week. The doctor had dismounted and was standing at his horse's head when the animal, it being lunch hour, turned and chewed off part of his beard. It is thought the horse, which is a valuble animal, will recover.

"Har" Daugherty, who is working as attorney general for the time being, was overheard cussin' out Charlie Morse, the ship dealer, in front of the postoffice recently. "Har" and Charlie ain't such good friends.

Your correspondent hears that Borax Bakhmeteff, Russian ambassador, has decided to retire, being as how he has had six years to prove it and can't. It'll be a long time before there'll be another ambassador from that country who can look as neat and pretty in a high hat and soup-suit.

Roses were seen in bloom here and there recently.

News is unusually dull for this time of year.

Charlie Hughes, who will be remembered as governor of New York some years back, is doing very well in his new position here as secretary of state. He has a deal of correspondence to handle and does it with speed and dispatch, as the saying goes.

Charley can compose a letter to Europe or Asia quite as well as Woodrow Wilson used to, some say even better.

Herb Hoover, who attracted attention some years ago by the way he got sandwiches and coffee through the submarine blockade, is being criticized by some senator or other, but Herb just goes on ignoring such things. Herb has a way of going ahead minding his own business and letting the critics say what they please that is most pleasing to the eye and ear.

All the villagers are wondering what the tariff will be on jackknives and whether it will lessen the stick whittling industry. A senator named Fordney is said to have promised to admit horseshoes free. This will guarantee the success of the summer horseshoe pitching contests.

A cow belonging to a distant cousin of a prominent Republican politician had a calf last week, born with three legs.

Mr. Harding is resting as comfortably as could be expected for a good natured man with the presidency to look after. He is seen up and about now and then with his golf clubs.

Warren Gamaliel Harding, according to reports, is having nervous spells due to worries in connection with his business. Warren's business just now is serving as president. His many friends and admirers wish him well and hope for the best. Warren formerly lived in Ohio, and there are many Ohioans here in Washington who know him.

Quite a lot of talk is heard around town pro and con and vice versa over the bonus, tariff, merchant marine, ship subsidy, and kindred topics.

A heated dispute is raging here as to who saw the first robin here this spring. Senator Borah claims he saw it, and Senator Watson insists the honor is his. They nearly came to blows over the issue recently. Borah was at one end of the chamber and Watson at the other end, and they were separated by colleagues who sprang between 'em.

The Hardings have a new century plant. Mrs. Harding is a great lover of flowers as is her husband, the w. k editor of Marion, Ohio, where he is also well-known as a band musician and as president of the United States of America.

Hen Lodge, popularly known as "Cab" Lodge, who comes from the Black Bay section of Massachusetts, a state in New England, denies the Kohlsatt tale in the Saturday Night Post that the late Senator Hanna once told him to go to hell. Hen says he would never take that language from anybody, particularly from anybody in a magazine story.

Hen still is quite active for his years and gets about considerably.

THE EVENING STORY

(Copyright, 1921, by W. Werner)

THE TWO ON THE PORCH

The porch was a delightful adjunct of a fine bungalow. Vines crept up trellises, roses bloomed around about; one great jardiniere held low laurel in pink profusion; another jardiniere held iris, purple and white. Sometimes a ruby-throated humming bird came to the iris for a drop of honey. A butterfly drifted by occasionally, and a wren sat on a bough of the great Duchess apple tree and sang of joy and June.

People passing by in cars, for Orchard street was on one of the three main arteries of the town, gazed at the delightful bungalow and the porch with its wealth of luxury, and at two old people who sat there in deep, easy chairs, doing nothing but look at whatever there was to see. From the expressions of their faces one would have understood those motorists to have been thinking: "How beautiful old age is when spent in that way!"

Across the street Ruth Rhodes thought the same thing. She was young and pretty and a bride, but she liked to watch her old neighbors, for she was deeply interested in them.

The old people watched Ruth in their turn. She was just another pleasant thing to observe.

Mr. Burnside was a slender, quiet, dignified old man. He sat in a chair which had been carefully selected to fit his back. Mrs. Burnside sat in another chair which had been carefully selected to fit her back. She had a beautiful lavender cape about her shoulders to ward off the nearest approach to chill. She was large and comfortable looking, but she had rheumatic knees. But at 78 one must not expect to preserve the free limbs of youth.

A personable and kindly intentioned old pair as ever lived, they seemed, sitting there in the sight of the neighborhood, and responding to the bows and smiles of greeting people who often went out of their way to bid them good morning. One would not have dreamed that they had not spoken one word to each other since that hour the day before.

It had all come about in this way: Mr. Burnside, having no trouble with his knees, did active portions of the housework, like washing dishes, dusting and making the bed. Twice a week a woman came in to put the bungalow in order; so these duties were not onerous. Yet the day before Mr. Burnside had played truant. He had gone to ride in the Pixley's new car, and had stayed away so long that Mrs. Burnside had to do his work for him. That had put her out terribly, for it hurt her knees, and that hurt her disposition.

When Mr. Burnside innocently came back from his frolic, Mrs. Burnside had a curtain lecture waiting for him, and he did not receive it kindly. He was as sulky as his wife was quick tempered. She had long since been sorry for her hasty words, but his wrath festered, and he felt much more sulky this morning than he had felt immediately after the thing happened. So while they looked a picture of peace and contentment they were, in reality, not speaking, and their hearts were full of trouble.

Ruth Rhodes ran across with a handful of great, scarlet poppies—"I've just got to scrape acquaintance," she said, as she made her offering. "I know you never pay calls, Mrs. Burnside."

"My knees make a stay-at-home of me," Mrs. Burnside said. "Your poppies are beautiful, my dear. Will——" Mrs. Burnside stopped short. She was going to ask William to get a vase for the flowers. She had forgotten just for an instant that they were not speaking.

William sat still, his small mouth pursed like a provoking child's.

"Do you know," eagerly said Ruth, "I think you two are the most beautiful pair of old people I ever saw in my life. Why, the life you lead here in this charming house and on this darling porch is absolutely ideal! Every time I look across at you, I say to myself, "Oh, I hope that Frank and I can live to be like that!"

Mrs. Burnside fingered her poppies. Her eyes filled. Mr. Burnside shifted guiltily in his chair.

"Frank and I were talking about you just this morning," went on Ruth. "You don't mind our talking about you, I hope." She smiled. "I think everybody in this street talks about you. You see, you are an example to all of us of how to grow old gracefully and how to live lovingly." She paused, a little breathless from her enthusiasm.

"Oh, dear me," said Mrs. Burnside. "You must never judge entirely by appearances, my dear."

"One cannot imagine your ever having a word," sighed Ruth. "Now Frank and I scrap sometimes. Frank says it's because we've neither of us really grown up. He says we'll get over scrapping when we're older. Then he says: 'Look at Mr. and Mrs. Burnside! We must live so we will be like them when we are their ages.'"

Mr. Burnside shuffled his feet and Mrs. Burnside let a poppy fall. Ruth picked it up. "Why, just this morning," said Ruth, confidentially. "I think we might have had a serious scrap if it hadn't been for you. The coffee wasn't right. Frank said it had a mud-bottom. I was going to say something very horrid when I looked out and saw you and Mr. Burnside sitting at your breakfast at your open dining room window. You looked so happy and beautifully serene that I swallowed my hateful temper. I said to myself, "They don't quarrel over their toast.'"

"No, we don't quarrel," said Mrs. Burnside. A petal dropped off the scarlet poppies. "I believe they've begun to wilt," she bemoaned.

Mr. Burnside arose. He went into the house and brought out a deep white porcelain vase, filled with water. He took the flowers and placed them in the vase and set them over on the table at his wife's elbow. She looked up at him wistfully.

"Thank you, dear," she said.

Mr. Burnside whipped out his handkerchief and blew his nose. "Fine morning," he said to Ruth.

"Lovely," admitted Ruth. "But I must go home, although I could stay here for hours. But Frank must have his luncheon."

Mrs. Burnside watched the young, slim figure go across the street. She sighed. Once she had been young and slim. She glanced at her husband and caught his eye. "It's too bad that I don't better live up to folks' opinion of us," she said as much to herself as to him.

"It's too bad that I don't either," said Mr. Burnside unexpectedly.

"I never dreamed that we were considered an example, or anything like that," plaintively said Mrs. Burnside. "I do wish I wasn't so quick-tempered, William."

"That's better than to be as sulky as a bear," Mr. Burnside generously made answer. "We've—I've got to do better than this, Anna."

"I'm going to try. If that dear child will think well of us we must live up to her expectations."

"Yes, a good example means a lot to the young. I'd hate to be responsible for any—any wreckage in our young neighbors' lives." Mr. Burnside arranged the lavender cape about his wife's shoulders. "Guess I'll go in and get some lunch," he said cheerfully. "Perhaps it would be a good time to christen the contents of that box of sea food our nephew, Julian, sent us the other day. What would you say to some creamed crab meat on toast?"

Mrs. Burnside patted his arm. Her old face glowed. "Why, dear, that would be lovely," she chirped. "And—and as there are two cans of that brand, what do you say to taking one over to little Mrs. Rhodes as a—as a return for her poppies and her good counsel?"

DESIRES TO BUILD WHERE CITY WOULD CUT THROUGH

A "Mr. Wilkins" Seeks to Press Rights in Face of Broadway Improvement

Attorney Anspaugh, representing a Mr. Wilkins, appeared before the city council Monday night and asked why the building superintendent refused to grant his client a permit to recet a building on West Broadway. He claimed that Mr. Wilkins had asked for such a permit and it had been refused him.

It developed that this building, if erected, will be on the property that will be effected in the opening and widening of West Broadway at the intersection of that street with Central avenue. The members of the city council told Mr. Anspaugh that his client has a perfect right to resort to the law and to compel the building inspector to issue such a permit.

"In view of the fact that the proposed builder knows very well what the city is trying to do in the way of eliminating the unsightly jog at the corner of Central and Broadway," said Councilman Stevenson, "I, for one, will do all I can to keep him from getting the desired permit. I do this for the simple reason that I do not want to burden the citizens located in this district with any unnecessary expense. If Mr. Wilkins puts up this building on a permit issued by the city the city will be sued for damages when he is compelled to move it later on."

Councilman Lapham and Mayor Robinson said they were of the same opinion as Councilman Stevenson.

THE POINT OF VIEW

We listened to two men who had been stung. Said the first to the second:

"That man is a crook. He sold me a horse that was spavined, blind in one eye, had the botts and was 23 years old."

Said the second to the first:

"That man is a thief. He sold me a flivver that had scored cylinders, a wornout gear, a wobbly drive shaft and a busted front axle."

And upon investigation we discovered that they had been stung in a trade of the horse for the flivver.

Journeying along the border a few weeks ago, Tom Mix, a motion picture actor, drove his automobile across the river into Juarez for a glass of beer, innocently parked it in a space where parking was prohibited and walked off. He had made about two blocks when he was clapped on the back by a breathless Mexican policeman.

"You air under arrest for putting ze automobile where he do not belong. Come with me. Why you not stop when I call you?" panted the gendarme.

"You never called me," said Mix.

"Si, senor, I call you twenty times. I hees—like dees: Sssssss! Zat is ze way we call ze attention of a hombre in Mexico."

"Well," said Mix, "all I've got to say is that's a rotten way to call an actor."

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

IT is well to understand that thrift is not miserliness.

Unfortunately many persons do not understand this clearly. They believe that the thrifty person is tightfisted, narrow and unprogressive. There is even a feeling entertained by many that thrift interferes with business, acts as a brake on the wheels of industry, and retards progress.

S. W. STRAUS

All such opinions are based on superficial observation and analysis. The thrifty man is not a miser. Quite to the contrary, he is able to buy well because he has the money with which to make the right kind of purchases. In case of sickness or accident he meets his bills promptly. He is quite often the owner of property, including the home in which he resides, and thus contributes to the upbuilding of his community.

He is thrifty, not in the sense of being close fisted, but in the sense of being progressive and enterprising.

He gets along well in the world and has something to look forward to in the coming years. His thrift is the elimination of waste, not the pinching of nickels and dimes.

Not enough general thought is given to the subject of thrift. To understand thoroughly its meaning and appreciate its value both to the individual and to society is to become an adherent to its practices.

EPISCOPAL DRIVE STARTS TODAY FOR PLEDGES

St. Mark's Congregation Out to Secure Funds for Minister's Salary

The big drive of St. Mark's Episcopal church to secure a pledged income of $300 a month, began today with four teams of the congregation, men and women, searching the city for Episcopalians who have not pledged their support to the church here.

The total amount sought is so small, considering the result to be gained in increased interest in the parish work, that it is expected that before the week is over a greater part of the amount will be signed up. St. Mark's congregation of about 200 has gradually worked off all the indebtedness of the parish and it stands free and clear on property worth perhaps $70,000.

There are said to be 1200 in Glendale more or less affiliated with Episcopal churches. Many of these attend churches in Los Angeles, because of the absence of a permanent rector at St. Mark's.

The vestry has met the demand for a local minister with the organization of the drive.

When the pledges are signed to the amount necessary to insure the payment of a minister, a call will be issued.

For the present the Rev. Nassau S. Stephens, one of the strongest ministers of the east, has consented to supply St. Mark's during his vacation with his family at Hermosa beach.

LONDON BANS DOPE FILM, "COCAINE"

LONDON (By mail).—London's super drug-film, "Cocaine," has been banned. Film censors viewed it, wrinkled disapproving eyebrows and gave it the gate. They felt that in view of the recent vice splurge, the dope picture had best remain unshown.

Film banning occupies a band of dismal antediluvians seven hours a day. The rest of the time they play golf, in order to quicken their eyesight. Among the things which they must ban on sight are:

Drunkenness.
Vice.
Too much leg.
"Snappy" dresses.
Irreverence.
Bedroom scenes of doubtful quality.
Realistic murders.
Crucifixions.
Guillotinings and executions with blood ad lib.
Impropriety of action.

VERDUGO GAS BOND ORDINANCE IS ADOPTED

Issue of $50,000 Securities Provided for Improvement District No. 5

The returns of the recent gas bond election in the Verdugo Woodlands were canvassed by the city council last night, Councilmen Lapham and Stevenson acting as tellers.

An ordinance was then adopted providing for the issuance of bonds to the extent of $50,000 of Municipal Improvement District No. 6.

Slowly, one by one, the obstacles that confront the Woodlands district in their struggle for gas are being eliminated. Soon the ditch digger will be on the job, and a short while later the gas will be turned into the mains—then even the Verdugo Woodlands will be happy.

ORPHANS OF THE STORM AT T. D. & L.

D. W. Griffith's newest photoplay sensation, "Orphans of the Storm," adapted from the stage classic made famous by Kate Claxton, "The Two Orphans," will be seen for the last times in this city at the T. D. & L. theatre today and tomorrow.

In the role of Henriette is Lillian Gish, whose work in former Griffith productions has placed her at the forefront of screen artists. Dorthy Gish has the role of the blind girl, Louise, the other orphan. Then there is Joseph Schildkraut, said to be the handsomest actor in all Europe, and who made such a sensational success in the leading role of "Liliom," in New York. He is seen as the romantic lover of Henriette, the Chevalier de Vaudrey.

Two friends put up at a hotel and one of them could not sleep or for some other reason got up early the following morning and went for a walk before breakfast.

He returned in time to join his friend at the meal and was greeted by the jocular:

"Up early this morning, Bill. What's the trouble?"

"How do you know I was up early, Jim?" Bill fencer.

"I heard you go out an hour before I came down," explained Jim.

"How do you know ti was me, though?" queried Bill.

"Oh, I can always tell your footsteps by your cough."

the SAVAGE CORD IS BUILT TO EXCEL

This tire has startled motordom with its remarkable performance on stage lines and other hard runs. There is nothing freakish about its construction, nor is it built by any so-called secret process. It does, however, embody the best known practices and latter-day attainments in cord tire construction. It has been built to be the world's foremost cord tire—built up to a standard for quality and not down to a price.

Tire men and motorists familiar with tire construction will find in the implicitly correct illustration above, aside from pleasing appearance and design, seventeen outstanding constructional features that make the Savage Cord the remarkable tire it is.

Other good makes of tires, to be sure, may use one or more of the features enumerated for this tire, but the Savage Cord is the only tire we know of that embodies them all.

1. An effective tread design provides traction, lateral stability and speed—all the ideal non-skid features with none of the disadvantages of some designs.

2. Stretched rubber is cut more readily than rubber under compression. The Savage Cord Tread is so designed that the rubber is compressed under car weight, thus increasing its resistance against sharp rocks, glass etc.

3. Shoulders of the tread are scientifically tapered instead of dropping off abruptly. This strengthens and guards against separation and breaking down at this point. The extra thickness of rubber here gives maximum protection against rut wear and similar abrasive actions.

4. Our Breaker Cover makes an efficient bond between the tough, wear-resisting rubber of the tread and the soft, resilient rubber of the cushion and breaker strip.

5. Our Breaker Strip is designed especially for the Savage Cord. Its weave gives maximum protection, absorbing road shocks and preventing tread separation.

6. Generously heavy sidewalls of the same compound as the tread protect the carcass against rut wear and deterioration from water, oil, etc.

7. A pure gum cushion extends clear down to the beads, cushioning and protecting the sides as well as the top of the carcass.

8. The Savage Bead Cushion is a protection against rim chafing.

9. In the sizes most subject to overloading and abuse the Carcass contains two more plies of cord fabric than the average cord tire. For example, the 5-inch has 10 plies. The average 5-inch tire has only 8 plies.

10. Pure gum friction around and between cords gives the carcass maximum elasticity and resiliancy.

11. Two chafing strips of square woven fabric, so constructed that the cord carcass is gradually stiffened as it approaches the hard bead, prevents the common "hinge" and resultant blow-outs above the beads.

12. The Savage system of interlocking EVERY ply of cords securely holds the beads. It takes longer to build tires this way than by the usual methods, but we thereby give maximum protection against blow-outs so common to that point.

13. Our anchor strip provides real anchorage by looping around the bead and extending well up into the sidewall, thus insuring a perfect union between the bead proper and the carcass.

14. No adjoining plies have cords running in same direction. This method requires more time for construction for it necessitates the application of only one ply at a time. We feel the additional time is justified by the greater carcass strength secured.

15. Our tire has a larger sectional diameter than the average cord.

16. Both chafing strips extend up to this point instead of stopping at the toe of the bead. This method locks our bead still more securely.

17. It is Built to Excel.

HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN FLAG

Written Exclusively for the Glendale Daily Press

CHAPTER VI

During the stirring days of the Civil war the Stars and Stripes came to have a deeper meaning for the country. It represented all that the North was fighting for—an unbroken Union. When the flag was fired on at Fort Sumter the heart of the nation was hot with rage. The following editorial appeared in the Philadelphia Enquirer:

"We know no cause save to wipe an insult from our flag, and to defend and maintain an assailed government and a violated constitution. We care not who is president, or what political party is in power; so long as they support the honor of the flag of our country, we are with them. Those who are not, are against us, against our flag, and against our government. 'Take your places in line!' The American flag trails in the dust."

There were too many thrilling events in which the flag figured during the Civil war to make note of them all. Through the long hard years of suffering and privation, it was the beacon which led ever onward.

At last the war was over, and the men returned from the front bearing their shell-shot banners: "The multitude raised a shout and cheered, but the impulse was but momentary, for at the sight of the array of tattered rags the noise of the tumult died away, and a half-suppressed sound was heard as through the hearts of the people there flashed a thrill of mingled pride and pain. Those who saw it will never forget the scene. In the center the tattered silk of the colors, and on the fringe and in the background a wonder-stricken crowd, as past uncovered heads, past dimmed eyes and quivering lips, the old flag was carried."

The period following the war was one of acquisition. Alaska was purchase, San Juan and Porto Rico were taken possession of, Honolulu was annexed, and the Philippines and Cuba were acquired.

There were no outstanding events centered around the Stars and Stripes during the war with Spain.

After the fever of enthusiasm which was created by this war had died down, the country sank into a lethargy of prosperity. The flag had apparently lost all meaning to the country—it was merely a piece of bunting to be paraded on holidays.

Then came rumors or war with Germany, tales of oppression. The whole world was in chaos. Across the waters came cries of anguish; applications for help. They could not be ignored. The Stars and Stripes went overseas; not for acquisition of territory, not for glory; but solely in the cause of humanity. Again the Stars and Stripes were bathed in blood and emerged in triumph—dearer to the American heart than ever.

What the future hold for the Stars and Stripes, none can foretell. The World war wiped out whatever vestige of feeling may have remained between the North and the South; it placed the United States in a unique position among the nations of the earth. It is to this country alone that the whole world looks for succor, not only financially, but for very existence.

Hordes of foreigners are flocking to this, the land of opportunity, where each may choose his own career and not be obliged to follow in the footsteps of his forefathers because he happened to be born into a certain class of society. What to be done with them is one of the great problems of the day. Assuredly they must be taught the traditions of this nation and all that the Stars and Stripes symbolize, until they learn to love and reverence it, and even willingly die for it. And from the North and the South, the East and the West, ever united, may the great chorus swell:

"'Tis the Star Spangled Banner,
Oh long may it wave
O'er the land of the free;
And the home of the brave."

PRIVATE LEWIS DIES IN P. I.

MANILA, P. I. (By Mail).—Private Tom Lewis, old-time bugler of the United States army, a member of the Thirty-first infantry, stationed in Manila, was drowned here while his company commander was searching for him to present him his honorable discharge with retirement pay.

Private Lewis went A. W. O. L. for three days, following his arrival in Manila from the United States. In the three days his retirement papers were made out. He had served more than a year over his required period.

Lewis was the bugler who sounded taps over the grave of President McKinley.

He repeatedly refused promotion to a non-commissioned grade because he had "always been a bugler and wanted to die a bugler."

"I'm afraid I shall require some proof of your identity, madam," said the bank cashier, when the none-too-fair lady presented a check for payment. And he looked the kind of man who thoroughly enjoys a little unpleasantness.

"Oh, I will give you as many proofs as you like," she answered sweetly. "I'm the 'old girl with the face 'on the other side of the fence, who will have her 'infernal piano' up against your dining-room wall. Last night when you got in, your wife said to you: 'If you don't turn up at a respectable hour tomorrow night I'll give you such a piece of my mind as you've never heard yet, you unfeeling, selfish—"

"Bills or gold?" hastily interrupted the cashier.

She Gets Millions Despite Report

Mrs. John M. Longyear, Jr., will share with her husband part of the vast wealth of the late John M. The aged copper king was reported to have been the wealthiest man in Massachusetts.

LAWYER-LESS LAW IS AIM OF NEW SOCIETY

Arbitration Organization Developed in New York With Strong Backing

NEW YORK, July —A law suit is a conflict, in most cases as merciless as the clash of contending armies on the field of battle. Both sides suffer and even victory is won at heavy cost. Victor and vanquished alike, brood over their scars and nurse the hatreds bred of the conflict to the end of their lives.

More sinister still is the fact that justice may, or may not, triumph in the outcome. All the world knows that rank injustice not infrequently prevails and that victory often goes to him who has the weaker cause, but the stronger counsel.

The reasons are easy to determine. Law is a humanly devised instrument for the administration of justice—that Divine principle which stands eternal as the guardian of our civilization—and like any other human instrument, it is faulty.

Indeed, so ineffective and cumbersome has our law and our legal practice become, with their bewildering maze of statutes and decisions, their endless rules of pleading and practice, procedure and evidence, and their many devices which in the hands of the unscrupulous are available to cloud issues, befuddle juries and breed destructive delays, that men with righteous causes often choose to forego the assertion of their rights rather than endure the financial drain and the mental strain of protracted litigation.

Meanwhile, the tide of litigation is rising, court calendars everywhere are congested and destructive delay is the inevitable portion of litigants.

These grim facts, which are occupying more and more of public attention as the evils multiply, serve as an impressive prologue to the launching of the Arbitration Society of America, in New York city, a few weeks ago.

To Make an End of "Law's Delays"

This organization challenges nation-wide attention with a project of epoch-making quality, as many regard it. The new society plans not only to popularize arbitration through a campaign of education that will cover every state in the Union, but to organize and operate a tribunal of justice which holds out these distinct promises of public service, namely:

1. To end the present congestion of court calendars.

2. To eliminate the "Law's Delays" which now mock the administration of justice, and in many cases constitute a positive denial of justice.

3. To deflect from our courts of law to a tribunal not shackled by technicalities, but guided by the rule of common sense, a large percentage of the cases—probably a full half—which now congest the calendars of our courts and clog their machinery.

4. To provide for this tribunal, a simple rule of procedure under which the disputants may tell their stories in their own way, before an arbitrator or arbitrators selected by themselves.

5. To assure all disputants a speedy and inexpensive determination of their differences and disputes, free from the heavy costs, in money, wasted time, protracted worries and lasting hatreds, which litigation almost invariably entails.

Led by Men Who Mean Business

To the vision and untiring efforts of Moses H. Grossman, prominent New York lawyer and former judge, this movement owes its origin. He has rallied to his support a group of distinguished men who constitute the board of governors of the society, and who, by virtue of their high character and standing, give convincing assurance that the project stands upon a firm basis and will be administered with vigor and intelligence.

The board of governors are:

Henry Ives Cobb, distinguished architect.

Robert Grier Cooke, president of the Fifth Avenue association, prominent among the civic organizations in New York.

Horace DeLisser, president of the Broadway association, representing the interests identified with New York City's main artery of business and traffic—the Street of All Streets, in international fame.

Moses H. Grossman, former judge and senior member of the law firm of House, Grossman & Vorhaus.

Charles L. Guy, justice of the supreme court of the state of New York.

Frederic Kernochan, chief justice, court of special sessions of the city of New York.

Samuel McCune Lindsay, president of the New York Academy of Political Science, and professor of Columbia university.

Gen. Samuel McRoberts, president of the Metropolitan Trust company.

James A. O'Gorman, former United States senator, former justice of the supreme court of the state of New York.

Thomas I. Parkinson, vice-president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States.

William C. Redfield, former secretary of commerce in the cabinet of President Wilson.

David A. Schulte, president Schulte Cigar Stores.

Franklin Simon, president Franklin Simon & Co.

Frank H. Sommer, dean New York University Law school.

Harlan F. Stone, dean Columbia University Law school.

The late Emerson McMillin, banker and president of the American Light and Traction company, a commanding figure in the financial world, and ever active in public service and private benevolence, was a member of the board and president of the society. His death followed close upon the launching of the movement, and no selection has yet been made from among the prominent men suggested for the vacancy.

The other officers are:

Samuel McCune Lindsay, vice-president.

Moses H. Grossman, vice-president.

Jules S. Bache, treasurer.

J. W. Slaght, executive secretary.

J. Noble Braden, secretary.

THE RED COW WA VED A LUCKY TAIL

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

"Shoosh!" Didn't the Red Cow snort and fling her head around when Frisk Squirrel landed on her horn. But she stopped the instant she heard him screeching for Tad Coon, because you know she and all the Woodsfolks were very good friends. And when Ouphe the Rat's wicked son leered his hungry eye over the edge of the manger she knew exactly what was wrong. So she raised her head as high as she could, higher than the wicked beast would dare to jump from where he was. He knew if he sprang and missed her horny hoofs would do their best to trample on him.

Yet rats are clever. And rats are determined. Gnashing his teeth, he shinned up the side of the stanchion, the two tall bars that locked the Red Cow's neck between them. From its top he could jump down with very little danger of missing, and he wasn't afraid of landing in her manger. He knew mighty well she hadn't the teeth to bite him. It was a perilous moment for Frisk Squirrel.

"Hang on!" lowed the cow. She dropped her head and wagged it from side to side. If the rat did jump she would shake him off. And then she'd raise it up again. She meant to keep him going until help arrived. Where was Tad Coon?

Why, you know where. He was watching the haystack. He was opening up the holes where he could smell rat tunnels running in beneath it. He sniffed each one to see which had been last used. That would be the one to watch. Snf! snf! This one was actually warm! He'd keep his eye on it. He opened it up for more than a foot. Then he craftily sat where his shadow would keep the sunlight from shining too brightly into the end of it. His mind and his paws were far too busy to pay attention to anything else.

It was Tommy's dog Watch who heard the Red Cow bawling. He hadn't been living up to his name. He'd been snoozing in the shed behind the grindstone, where it was nice and dark, so the flies wouldn't bother him. With the speed of a guilty conscience he dug in his claws and sent the pebbles flying. He didn't even go around by the barn door. The window was open, and he knew there was hay to land on. "Grr-woof!" he yelled, as it rustled beneath him.

The rat did a scuttle. He forgot where he was. His first jump landed on the Red Cow's back. He was off again quick as a slap, while the poor dog had to rush all the way around the long row of stanchions. But the Red Cow's swishing tail caught him in mid-air on his next jump. And if a cow ever swished you behind the ears you'd know how hard her tail can hit.

RAILROADS LOWER FARE TO CARMEN PRODUCTION

Automobile Club Charts All Roads Leading to Hollywood

So widespread is the interest in the spectacular performance of "Carmen" to be given the evening of July 8 in the Hollywood bowl at Hollywood, that the various railroads of California are to make special excursion rates for the occasion.

In addition to this the Automobile club of Southern California is charting all roads so that autoists can drive directly to the bowl from any of the nearby cities and towns.

So great has been the seat sale to date that arrangements have been made whereby 65,000 persons can be taken care of on the surrounding hills. The seating capacity of the Hollywood bowl was 5,500, but hardly had the production been talked about when it was realized this large seating capacity would be wholly inadequate. Therefore, Walter E. Shostedt, business manager, put a large force of artisans at work to increase the capacity to 35,000.

A scale of prices has been adopted which will allow everybody to attend this colossal performance. Tickets range in price from $50 to $1, war tax extra, with 10,000 seats at $1.

Marguerita Sylva, often referred to as "the favorite Carmen of all times" is to sing the leading role. For the other roles such well-known singers as the following have been secured: Edward Johnson, leading tenor of the Chicago opera company; Carl Gantvoort, celebrated basso of the Boston opera company; Henri Scott, principal baritone of the Metropolitan opera company, and Edna Leopold, lyric soprano, who has been popular on the concert stage.

MOTORCYCLE RACE IS SEVERE TEST

Fred Ludlow, riding a DeLuxe Henderson, and Blick Wolters on a K model, both equipped with special high alloy pistons, made the only perfect scores in the Southern Pacific sectional championship endurance run July 2, 1922, the hardest grind ever staged on the Pacific coast as a partial outline of the course followed will indicate: Los Angeles to Saugus, Elizabeth Lake, Mojave, Barstow and Box S ranch, over the Mojave desert, thence to San Bernardino, Idylwild and Hemet, over mountains reaching an elevation of 7000 feet above sea level at Big Bear, returning to Los Angeles via Riverside. The consistent performance of both riders under the most severe conditions showed the gameness of the riders as well as proving the superiority of the four-cylinder Henderson motorcycle. This was held under the auspices of the M. & A. T. A., and the riders will be awarded gold medals.

COUNCIL PROTESTS WOODLAND MAIL SWITCHING

Telegraphs Congressman Lineberger to Continue Glendale Distribution

The city council took steps Monday night to stop, if possible, the service of the people of Verdugo Woodlands wtih mail matter from the La Canada postoffice rather than from the Glendale office, as at present.

The following telegram was sent to Congressman Walter Lineberger at Washington, D. C.:

"The council of the city of Glendale has resolved that it is not desirable that any part of the city be served by any rural mail delivery unless such routes start from the Glendale postoffice.

"We ask that you use your influence to rescind an order that will become effective July 16, establishing a delivery service from La Canada, which is not desired by the city of Glendale."

The people of the Verdugo Woodlands section are satisfied to have their mail delivered from the Glendale postoffice, and they are doing all they can to have things remain just as they are right now.

SO. KENILWORTH IMPROVEMENTS COST PROTEST

Rev. Edward D. Chapin Heads Delegation to Voice Objection

A protest against the class of improvement that has been put in on South Kenilworth street between Colorado and Harvard street, and against the price charged for the same, was made before the city council Monday night by Rev. Edward D. Chapin and others who are residents of that street.

The protestants feel that the work that has been laid on Kenilworth is of very poor quality. They do not know whether or not the work was done according to specifications, but they are sure that it is not good enough for them. At the same time they feel that $4.25 per front foot for the improvement is too high. They claim also, that wtih the street improved as it is their property will suffer worse from the water than it has in the past, when they were almost flooded out.

The council set July 13 as the date for the protest against the assessment for the work, which includes sidewalks, curbs and oiled and rock-covered roadway.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

DISTURBED

I was happy and contented
And I hope you were the same,
And I did not fret or worry
Before Doctor Bryan came
With his masterful defiance
Of old Darwin and his crust,
Now I'm asking me this question,
If I'm a monkey or I'm dust.

Once it did not seem to matter
If I did my work up right,
So I labored in my vineyard
From the early morn till night.
I was such a willing worker
And was useful, too, I trust,
But I'm all upset with wonder
If I'm monkey or I'm dust.

Once I tilled my field as busy
As I felt a man should be,
And I might have been a tadpole
In a prehistoric sea,
But it did not seem to fret me,
Now I realize I must
Come to some right quick decision
If I'm monkey or I'm dust.

So I'm sitting on a fence rail,
And I'm chewing on a straw,
And I'm holding ante-mortems
On myself with frightful awe.
And my vineyard is neglected
And my plow is red with rust,
And my soul is filled with wonder:
Am I monkey? Am I dust?

Ice, Ice Everywhere

Such was the condition of the United States north of the southern shore of Long Island, north of the Ohio river, and in corresponding latitudes west of the Mississipp' river. In those days, years and years ago, the northern part of the United States and all of Canada were one vast field of ice many feet thick. Rocks ground by tons of ice show a smooth scratched surface. When you see a rock of this kind in your walks through the country you will know that it is a glacial rock.

STANLEY AVENUE CONDEMNATION HEARING

Delay in Opening to Crisis Wednesday Evening

The hearing of the condemnation proceedings in the matter of the opening of Stanley avenue will come up next Wednesday, according to advices received by the city council Monday night. This matter has been held up for almost a year and a half, during which time the residents of Stanley avenue have been praying for relief. They are encouraged over the fact that permanent relief is within sight.

A Year Ago Today

From the Glendale Daily Press, July 5, 1921

Mr. and Mrs. John Lauderdale and daughters, Clara and Marguerite, who have been living on South Louise street, have moved to their new home on Vine street.

A fine dinner and attendance marked the joint meeting of the N. P. Post and Corps yesterday at the G. A. R. hall.

Mrs. Samuel Dick, 309 North Louise street, last night entertained at dinner for her son, Lieutenant William Putcamp, who was with the expeditionary forces in France, and was severely wounded and gassed while in action.

Petitions are being circulated in the business district pledging support to the construction of a sewer system in that district.

PRODIGAL JUDGE IS LOVABLE ONE

Jean Paige, who has not been seen upon the screen since her memorable appearance as Jessie Gordon in "Black Beauty," based on the famous story by Anna Sewell, is the star of the big special production "The Prodigal Judge," which will be seen at the Glendale theatre today. It was made under the direction of Edward Jose. The picture is based on the story by Vaughan Kester which was the most talked of novel of the year when it was published some years ago, and has since maintained its place as one of the best American novels.

He was one of those bachelors who seem to pervade the world these days—full of a blatant self-assurance and ever talking about the kind of woman he would marry some day. An older and wiser bachelor, who had experienced innumerable throwouts, approached the irrepressible one with the suggestion: "But aren't you afraid of getting left?"

"Oh, no. Why, even if I am left by one," he averred, "there are many more fish in the sea."

The other lit his pipe and turned away, commenting, "Maybe, but isn't there a danger of the bait getting stale?"

CHRIST LIFE IS TOLD BY MR. EDMONDS

Minister Discusses Fight to Live According to Precepts

At the Presbyterian church, Sunday morning, the pastor, Rev. W. E. Edmonds, preached on "The Christ Life." He said in part:

Is it possible these days to live a life that is pleasing to God? It is a fight with antagonists on every hand from start to finish. Perhaps the secret lies in this, "that in all things Christ might have the preeminence." Something, someone, has to occupy the top place: Who, what?

It is possible for me to stand with Him? I can recognize His omnipotent, creative skill; why shall He not make and direct the shape of my life? God's plan for every believer is a harmonious life, and it will be so with you, insofar as He is preeminent in your life. It should be an obedient life. What He asks us to do is always the best thing for us. Men bring discord into their life when they put His law under foot.

Christ is the center of all the believer's life—a force in us, a force flowing from us. Look at this Christ center from three viewpoints: Mentality, Morality, Ministry.

He is the intellectual force in the world today. It is the perpetual surprise of all history, how twelve unlearned disciples became the spring of all culture. We face a great revival in education these days. Get all you can—everything to build up the mind God gave you. But Christ must be the head of the whole thing. Among all schools there are men who are bowed down to as final authority. But Jesus Christ knows the whole of knowledge. Many set Him aside, demanding the latest word of science. But the latest word on one day is thrown aside ten years later. It is Christ you have to recognize at the top and from Him you have to learn. In all our jurisprudence we have to insist that He is head. In medical science there is wonderful attainment of knowledge, yet above the whole of it is God, who made the body and knows it and knows how to deal with it.

Jesus Christ is the infallible, moral standard of perfect manhood, the summit. Come out and look up there; move up, on to the heights with Him and stay there.

He was preeminent in His ministry. Wonderful, the things He did. But the Cross, and the Resurrection, and the Ascension, and the Second Coming—these are all as equal spokes in the wheel, and all alike fundamental.

Glaciers

On the sides and tops of mountains above a certain altitude there is perpetual snow. It is natural that this mass of snow thru its own weight should slowly work its way down by following great crevices and mountain canyons. And so it flows slowly down to lower altitudes, a river of compact snow. The top and center flow faster than the bottom and sides. In the far north these glaciers, arriving at the sea, break into huge pieces and form icebergs.
